CLIFFORD CHANCE

FEMALE ARBITRATION

GENDER EQUALITY IN INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION?

Achieving gender parity in international arbitration and law has come a long way thanks to the many diversity campaigns promoting female practitioners and encouraging dialogue around gender bias. But there is still a long way to go. This very day, women are still underrepresented in arbitration. With our event, we want to contribute to the aims of organisations such as The Pledge and Arbitral Women and take a further step towards gender parity and gender equality.

Our event will focus on current developments in the field, with the aim of fostering active dialogue between all participants and discuss the goal of increasing the number of female arbitrators in arbitration proceedings and ways in which we can get there. We are delighted to announce that we will be joined by experienced arbitrators who will offer their personal experiences, ideas and approaches. We look forward to seeing you there and hearing your ideas!
