UNDERSTANDING FILM

Did you know film can expire?

Expiration dates are placed on all manufactured film to ensure the best quality of development. Color dyes in film will deteriorate over time so the longer film is held on to before proper development, the more it will become inconsistent. Photos from a birthday party in 1981 will no longer have red and blue balloons, but pink and gray ones.

Below are examples of film that may be more difficult to scan or print.

Expired

Heat Damaged

Under-exposed

Over-exposed

Overlapping

New Pre-exposed Film (ie Psych Blue, Dubblefilm)

Films that fall into these or other categories may require a manual scan fee of $10.00 per roll.

Understanding Copyright

25 year limit

Due to U.S. Copyright law, we cannot reproduce any copyrighted or trademarked images. Here are some copyright basics. For more information on copyright, contact the Copyright Office or visit www.copyright.gov

Mere ownership of a book, manuscript, painting, or any other copy or phonorecord does not give the possessor the copyright. The law provides that transfer of ownership of any material object that embodies a protected work does not of itself convey any rights in the copyright.

What Is Copyright?

Copyright is a form of protection provided by the laws of the United States (title 17, U. S. Code) to the authors of "original works of authorship," including literary, dramatic, musical, artistic, and certain other intellectual works. This protection is available to both published and unpublished works. Section 106 of the 1976 Copyright Act generally gives the owner of copyright the exclusive right to do and to authorize others to do the following:

- To reproduce the work in copies or phonorecords;
- To prepare derivative works based upon the work;
- To distribute copies or phonorecords of the work to the public by sale or other transfer of ownership, or by rental, lease, or lending;

It is illegal for anyone to violate any of the rights provided by the copyright law to the owner of copyright.

Who Can Claim Copyright?

Copyright protection subsists from the time the work is created in fixed form. The copyright in the work of authorship immediately becomes the property of the author who created the work. Only the author or those deriving their rights through the author can rightfully claim copyright.

What Works Are Protected?

Copyright protects “original works of authorship” that are fixed in a tangible form of expression. The fixation need not be directly perceptible so long as it may be communicated with the aid of a machine or device. Copyrightable works include the following categories:

- literary works
- musical works, including any accompanying words
- dramatic works, including any accompanying music
- pantomimes and choreographic works
- pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works
- motion pictures and other audiovisual works
- sound recordings
- architectural works

These categories should be viewed broadly. For example, computer programs and most “compilations” may be registered as “literary works”; maps and architectural plans may be registered as “pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works.”

Copyright is secured automatically when the work is created, and a work is “created” when it is fixed in a copy or phonorecord for the first time. “Copies” are material objects from which a work can be read or visually perceived either directly or with the aid of a machine or device, such as books, manuscripts, sheet music, film, videotape, or microfilm.
