

Five Reasons Why Chinese Millennials are Driving the Tourism Market

3. Chinese millennials are relatively wealthy.

Young Chinese travelers -- as the first generation born under the "One Child Policy" -- have greater purchasing power than their parents, helped also by their higher education levels and lower debt. Chinese millennials tend to spend more, racking up an astonishing $50,000 per year on leisure and travel costs.

Read more at
Basilinna.com and @BasilinnaDC

