Under the Public Information Act, some categories of information do not have to be released. Exceptions to disclosure fall into two general categories: 1) mandatory exceptions that make information confidential and require a governmental body to withhold information, and 2) discretionary exceptions that allow but do not require a governmental body to withhold information. You may find information about mandatory and discretionary exceptions: https://www.texasattorneygeneral.gov/open-government/members-public/confidential-information-under-public-information-act.

In most instances, a governmental body is required to request a decision from the Attorney General in order to withhold information from a requestor. However, a requestor may permit a governmental body to redact information without requesting an Attorney General’s decision. You are not required to agree to the redaction of any information responsive to your request, but doing so may streamline the handling of your request. If you agree to redactions in this request, then you may request the redacted information in a future information request.

• Do you agree to the redaction of information that is subject to mandatory exceptions, provided such redactions are clearly labeled on the information you received?  □ Yes  □ No

• Do you agree to the redaction of information that is subject to discretionary exceptions, provided such redactions are clearly labeled on the information you receive?  □ Yes  □ No

If the City determines that the requested file relates to an active case and that release would harm the detection, investigation, or prosecution of a crime, do you still wish to request the specified information?

□ Yes, the City will seek the Attorney General's opinion to keep the information confidential.  □ No
