Job Description:

If you're an ambitious Investment Analyst looking to grow beyond financial markets into real asset and luxury investments, and connect with a vibrant community of enthusiastic, passionate, collectors of precious objects, we'd love to hear from you. In this role, you'll be responsible for developing economic and real asset forecasts and strategies for all markets we will be operating in. You will design and operate quantitative tools and contribute your strategic views that are crucial for the investment process.

As with all start-ups, the work is often ground-breaking, exciting and purposeful, but requires belief, dedication and sometimes long or irregular hours. The fun is in doing it as part of an equally enthusiastic and positive, close-knit team who all have a common goal. The ideal candidate will be using both data and creative methodologies to shape exceptional investment views.

Job responsibilities:

- Analyze and forecast developments of major economies and key strategic investment themes
- Publish analytical client publications on global markets, thematic real asset topics and asset allocation
- Development of real asset valuation and forecast models and scorecards, complementary to traditional financial markets analysis
- Managing and assessing multiple, parallel investment opportunities, sometimes with short deadlines

Skills:

- Masters in economics, econometrics or finance, PhD/CFA is a plus
- Minimum 3 years experience as an analyst in an applied research function with an interest and affinity to the real asset markets
- Exceptional analytical and quantitative skills paired with excellent writing and presentation skills
- Ability to develop innovative models to create a competitive edge
- Ability to work in a team-oriented and client-focused manner
