

Twister (p. 90)

This game has one spinner, divided into fourths by color, hand and foot. After spinning a combination is called and a child must move the part to a matching location. Now two children can have a hand or foot on the same circle.

