LEGAL NOTICES

- A The first / top listing on the Developments / Our Homes List page should prominently feature whatever you prioritise as the best use of this important space. Content can be set up to change dynamically depending on the visitor profile but essentially, whatever a visitor sees, whether a map selector (first time visitor) or a previously viewed property (return visitor), it should be the most appropriate thing for THAT visitor. While the space could be used for a map of your current developments (I know you have expressed an interest in such a design element) will you really have enough developments active at any one time to warrant it? It might just slow people down when compared to a simple list? Perhaps a 'Featured Development' might still be a better use of the space?
- B This button allows page visitors to instantly scroll straight to the first 'current development' in the list without scrolling down.
- C This button allows page visitors to instantly scroll straight to the first 'Coming Soon' development in the list without scrolling down.
- D Your current developments will be listed in date order (newest first). As you do not usually have a large number of developments at any one time a simple list (as opposed to accordion or carousel options) will probably be the simplest design for users to navigate. We might be able to offer sorting options (arrange by price, location etc) but as there will not be a huge number of developments this again may be overkill and prove time consuming to implement.
- E Your 'Coming Soon' developments will be listed in completion order (soonest first).
