

EVENTS PRIVACY POLICY

Online registration for events requires data collection.

When you register electronically for a BTC Media event, your personal data will be collected and processed for the limited purposes described below. Please read and be sure you fully understand how your personal data will be used and protected by our company.

All BTC Media events operations, including our events data processing, are under the supervision of our Head of Media.

The purpose of our data collection and processing.

We use the personal data you enter upon registering to effectively manage and organize our event. This includes management of lists for invitations, reports, meeting planning and follow-up, distribution of news and publications, and satisfaction surveys.

We also collect photos, video, and audio during the event to distribute information on the event and create awareness about any and/or all of our events.

BTC may use your personal data to contact you with newsletters, marketing or promotional materials and other information from our company or one of our partners.

Some of your information may also be distributed on a limited basis to event sponsors for the purposes of planning and promotion. If you wish to opt out of this use of your data, you may do so using the link below.

Exactly what data is collected and processed?

Registration data collected from you is limited to the following: name, title, name of your organization, email address, postal address, country where your organization or you are based, profession, job title, phone number, and fax number.

Photographic, audio and video recordings are made at our events of speakers and participants. Members of the public who attend may also be recorded. This material is reproduced in publications, on our website on social media, and to the press for the purpose of distributing information and increasing awareness of the event.

If you do not want your image or voice recorded or published for any compelling and legitimate reason, please let conference organizers know when you check in at the event.

Who has access to your personal data?

Your personal data will be collected and processed only by BTC Media staff and approved contractors directly involved in the organization and management of our events.

A list of event participants that includes title, first and last name, organization/company, location and email address may be distributed to selected event sponsors. Should you wish your data to be withheld from such lists you may opt-out by using the notification link below.

How your information is protected.

All personal data collected by BTC Media is internally processed only by designated staff members or agents and stored on servers that abide by best-practice security rules and standards.

Any external contractors working in organizing BTC events must guarantee the protection, security and confidentiality of data stored on computers used by contractors acting as processors.

Your data is shared with service providers and/or external contractors only for institutional purposes related to the organization of the event, and only when approved privacy safeguards are in place.

A list of event registrants may be shared with law enforcement authorities if required by law, but only upon specific request justified by conference security-related matters.

How you can further protect or exclude your data.

If you would like to exclude or modify your data from any collection or processing activity, or have questions about how your data is stored and used, contact BTC's Data Controller or Conference Organizer using the contact information below:

josh.rosenblatt@btcmedia.org

Changes to this privacy policy.

This privacy policy is effective as of March 15, 2019 and will remain in effect except with regard to any changes made in the future which will be in effect immediately after being posted on this page. BTC Media reserves the right to update or change our privacy policies at any time and you should check this privacy policy periodically. Your continued use of our events page and participation in our event after we post any modifications to the privacy policy on this page will constitute your acknowledgement of the modifications and your consent to abide by and be bound by the modified privacy policy.