Partial sebum gland hyperactivity is the main cause of COMBINATION SKIN. Sebum gland hyperfunction generally occurs due to a predisposition. However, hormonal changes, medications, etc. may also lead to increased sebum production. Occurrence during puberty and occasionally also the menopause is not therefore infrequent. The skin's pores become enlarged as a result of increased sebum production. If excessive hornification is also added, so-called sebum plugs are formed. These occur in the form of open blackheads, which have a natural secretory duct, but also as closed blackheads which lie beneath the epidermis and are encapsulated. In the most unfavorable scenario, these sebum plugs may become inflamed. Particularly if they are squeezed improperly.

Irrespective of this, the increased sebum production leads to an unattractive oily sheen in the central area of the face, whilst the dry side areas appear brittle and may feel unpleasantly taut. These symptoms are additionally susceptible to seasonal fluctuations, i.e. the skin appears oilier in the summer and drier in the winter.

The treatment of COMBINATION SKIN therefore requires active substance preparations which act to balance the skin's natural functions and are highly-moisturizing so that a balanced and silky-matte skin profile is achieved.

Balancing Skin Complex

SEBUM GLAND-REGULATING ACTIVE SUBSTANCE CONCENTRATE

If combination skin additionally reveals its particularly oily side, it also frequently tends to reveal enlarged pores and increased blemishes in this area.

A course of treatment alongside basic daily care is offered by a specific active substance concentrate, with the objective of limiting the function of hyperactive sebum glands. The transparent, turquoise-blue Balancing Skin Complex skin care gel has been developed for precisely this purpose.

In addition to its moisturizing and sebum-reducing properties, it also contains a natural astringent. This is the extract obtained from the larch agaric tree fungus. Regular application results in a more even and finely structured skin profile with significantly reduced pores.

After applying Balancing Skin Complex daily for just a few weeks, the frequency with which this special preparation is applied can be reduced to a few times per week.

ACTIVE SUBSTANCES

- Fomes officinalis: Larch agaric (tree fungus) extract, contains polysaccharides and minerals; natural astringent acts to perceptibly lift and refine the skin profile by reducing the size of pores
- Red algae extract (Condrus crispus): Moisturizing
- Anti-sebum active substance complex: Contains an extract from olive leaves (oleanolic acid), reduces excessive sebum production, has a keratolytic and bactericidal effect

Home care application

Distribute over the oily areas of the face and neckline in the morning and/or evening after cleansing with Gentle Cleansing Powder, massage in gently and allow to work in for a few minutes. Then apply Balancing Cream on top.

Tip: As soon as the oily sheen on the skin is reduced, continuing treatment is recommended to maintain success. In this case, application once to twice per week (1 x daily) is sufficient.*
