METAPHORS

- A metaphor is a comparison of two essentially unlike things, like a simile, written by saying one thing is the other.
- For example, "the sun is an egg yolk in the morning."

Directions: Fill in the blanks below to create imaginative, descriptive metaphors. You can extend the metaphor if you'd like, like, in the example above: "The sun is an egg yolk in the morning, dropped into the bowl of the sky without a speck of shell."

The window is _____.

My family is _____.

A mountain is _____.

The fog is _____.

My personality is _____.

Life is _____.

Choose one of your metaphors above and make it into the first line of a poem with an extended metaphor. Your poem should be at least 10 lines.
