

COMPONENTS OF Lummi Nation's Healing Spirit Clinic Model

Cultural Fit	Offers a Culture Room with a cultural therapist and cultural assistant to teach about spiritual aspects of traditional practices and traditional arts	Innovative Practice	Opened the first MAT using Suboxone in Indian Country	Knowledge Sharing	Meetings were held to discuss as a Nation the concerns regarding OUD in the community and how to best address the issues
Cross Sector Collaboration	Integrate services already offered by the tribal government w/ MAT  Providers work together to support the Opiate Treatment Program	Meeting Community Needs	Syringe Service Program  Naloxone kits distributed "door to door"  Wrap-around services	Community Investment	OUD services started by the efforts of tribal elders and family members
Leadership	Tribal leaders supported the community's efforts  Directors of different programs work together to meet the needs of clients	Professional &amp; Cultural Development	Culturally focused curriculum is available for staff  Agreements with the local college for paramedic training and internships	Sustainability	Funds are provided through a third-party billing agreement with the state
Data Infrastructure	Data systems integrated with existing EHRs  Q1 for internal reviews  Client satisfaction surveys	The Lummi Nation harm reduction and integrated care approaches combines traditional Lummi values to individualize care with Western medicine, and provides integral contextual and cultural supports to ensure engagement and participation in chartering a tailored recovery journey.

