CELLARIUM
ELEGANT INDIVIDUAL WINE LOCKERS

Transform an under-utilized space into an elegant, seamless showcase for your members' collections.

There is a growing trend in clubs to allow members to stock their own wine, requiring individual lockers to be installed, usually near the dining room or in temperature-controlled cellars.

Retain & Recruit Members
Wine lockers will provide your facility with a competitive advantage over clubs not offering this amenity, enhancing membership recruiting and retention.

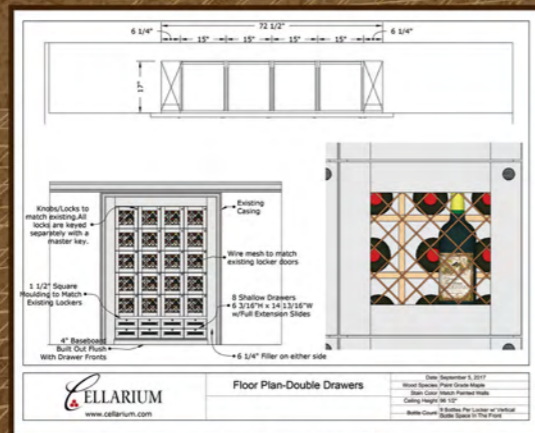

Return on Investment
In most cases, the sale or lease of the lockers offsets the cost of the project, with the added advantage of increasing food and beverage sales.

Wine Societies and Wine Clubs often form after lockers are made available in the clubhouse.

Our clientele receive quality, detailed designs providing an accurate visual of your lockers before construction.

These concept drawings were the first step in the creation of the stunning project shown on the right.

Cellarium can match any décor, wood species, finish hardware or interior architecture which will visually add to the cohesiveness and ambiance of the clubhouse.

A beautiful example of what can be created for your members in an otherwise unused space.

Comment from a club member to
Don Cochran, owner, Cellarium

In addition to the installment of wine lockers on a main floor, clubs also have the option of adding a temperature-controlled wine cellar for wine lockers and/or the storage of house wines.

Cellarium has extensive experience in the design and creation of extraordinary cellars.

Many factors go into the decision to join or patronize a particular club. Location, course designer, amenities. Among those amenities being considered more frequently today is the availability of personal wine storage, often referred to as wine lockers.

Wine lockers are a great differentiator for your club, providing an element of pride and personalization for members. They give your establishment a distinct advantage over those without.
