

Personal Information Protection and Electronic Document Act Policy

1. Accountability

- i. Senior Pastor is hereby appointed as the personal information compliance officer (the "officer").
- ii. All persons, whether employees, volunteers, or board or team members who collect, process, or use personal information shall be accountable for such information to the officer.
- iii. This policy shall be made available upon request.
- iv. Any personal information transferred to a third party is subject to this policy. The officer shall use contractual or other appropriate means to protect personal information at a level comparable to this policy while a third party has this information.
- v. Personal information to be collected is done so only using applications and forms approved by the Privacy Officer. All methods of retention of information are according to the officer's instructions.
- vi. Any person who believes the church uses personal information collected, retained, or used for purposes other than those that person explicitly approved may contact the officer to register a complaint or to make any related inquiry.
- vii. Upon receiving a complaint from any person regarding the collection, retention, or use of personal information, the officer shall promptly investigate the complaint and notify the person who complained about his/her findings and corrective action taken, if any.
- viii. Upon receiving the response from the officer, the person who filed the complaint may, if he/she is not satisfied, appeal to the church's Board of Elders to review and determine the disposition of the complaint at issue.
- ix. The determination of the Board of Elders shall be final and the officer shall abide by and implement any of its recommendations.
- x. The officer shall communicate and explain this policy and give training regarding it to all employees and volunteers who might be in a position to collect, retain, or use personal information.
- xi. The officer shall prepare and disseminate information to the public which explains the church's protection of personal information policies and procedures.

2. Identifying Purposes

- i. The officer shall document the purpose for which personal information is collected to comply with the openness of the individual being able to access their own personal information.

- ii. The officer shall ensure that only information needed to fulfill purposes for which the information is to be collected is asked for on the forms/applications Harvest Bible Chapel uses. To comply with the limited collection principle below.

- v. The officer shall ensure that a person collecting personal information will be able to explain to the individual why this is being done.
- vi. The officer shall ensure that limited collection, limited use, disclosure, and retention principles are respected in identifying why personal information is to be collected.

3. Consent

- i. The officer shall ensure that the individual from whom personal information is collected consents to this and to it being used and disclosed, unless obtaining the consent would be inappropriate. Sometimes personal information can be collected, used, or disclosed without the individual's knowledge and consent. For example, legal, medical, or security reasons might make seeking consent impossible or impractical. When information is being collected to detect and prevent fraud, seeking the individual's consent might defeat collecting the information's purpose. Seeking consent might be impossible or inappropriate when the individual is a minor, seriously ill, or mentally incapacitated.
- ii. The officer shall ensure that the individual can reasonably understand why and how the information will be used when the consent is given.
- iii. The officer shall ensure that where implied consent cannot be assumed, express consent is obtained wherever possible and appropriate. Such implied consent should not be assumed if the church would pass on the personal information to a para-church organization that is not an integral part of the church.
- iv. In obtaining express consent, the officer shall ensure that the individual's reasonable expectations are respected.
- v. The officer shall ensure that the express consent obtained from an individual is clear and in an appropriately verifiable form whether it be paper form or electronic form.
- vi. The officer shall ensure that the individual may withdraw consent at any time, subject to legal or contractual restrictions and reasonable notice. The individual shall promptly be informed of the withdrawal's implications.

4. Limiting Collection

- i. The Officer shall ensure that personal information will not be collected indiscriminately. Both the amount and type of information collected shall be limited to that which is necessary to fulfill the purposes identified.

- ii. The officer shall ensure that information is collected only by fair and lawful means without misleading or deceiving individuals as to the reason.
- iii. The officer shall ensure that the identifying purposes and consent principles are followed in identifying why personal information is to be collected.

5. Limiting Use, Disclosure, and Retention

- i. The officer shall ensure that personal information shall not be used or disclosed for purposes other than those for which it was collected, except with the consent of the individual or as required by law, and any use of personal information shall be properly documented.
- ii. The officer shall ensure that all personal information is destroyed, erased, or made anonymous as soon as the purpose for which it was collected is no longer relevant, or as permitted by law. Except as required to be retained by law, all personal information shall be deleted, erased, or made anonymous no later than seven years after the purpose for which it was collected has been completed.
- iii. The Officer shall ensure that all use, disclosure, and retention decisions are made in light of the consent principle (individual giving consent to use information), the identifying purposes principle (that purposes of collection made known) and the individual access principle (that individual is allowed access).

6. Accuracy

- i. The officer shall ensure that the information is sufficiently accurate, complete, and up to date to minimize the possibility that inappropriate information might be used to make a decision about an individual.
- ii. The officer shall ensure that the church does not routinely update personal information, unless it is necessary to fulfill the purposes for which the information was collected.
- iii. The officer shall ensure that personal information used on an ongoing basis, including information that is disclosed to third parties, should generally be accurate and up to date.

7. Safeguards

- i. The officer shall ensure that the church has security safeguards to protect personal information against loss or theft, as well as unauthorized access, disclosure, copying, use, or modification. He/she shall do this regardless of the format in which the church holds the information.

A higher level of protection shall safeguard more sensitive information according to the consent principle's considerations.
- iii. The Officer shall ensure that the protection methods include, (a) physical measures, for example, locked filing cabinets and restricted access to offices; (b) organizational measures, for example, security clearance and limiting access on a "need-to-know" basis; and (c) technological measures, for example, the use of passwords and encryption.

If possible, the information's source shall also be given. The church shall allow the individual access to this information. The church may, however, choose to make sensitive medical information about its employees or volunteers available through a medical practitioner. The church shall also account for the use that has been made or is being made of this information and give an account as to the third parties to whom it has been disclosed. (Note, If the officer believes for valid reasons that access to personal information should be denied, he/she shall consult legal counsel before making such a decision.)
- ii. A person requesting his/her personal information may be required by the officer to give sufficient information to permit the church to provide an account of the existence, use, and disclosure of personal information. Information shall be used only for the purpose for which it was obtained.

- iii. If the church has supplied personal information about an individual to third parties, the officer shall ensure that an attempt is made to be as specific as possible. When to give a list of the organizations to which it has actually disclosed information about an individual is impossible, the church shall provide a list of organizations to which it might have disclosed information about the individual.
- iv. The officer shall ensure that the church responds to an individual's request within a reasonable time and at minimal or no cost to the individual. The requested information shall be made available in a generally understandable form. For example, the church shall explain abbreviations or codes it uses to record information.
- v. The officer shall ensure that when an individual successfully demonstrates the inaccuracy or incompleteness of personal information, the church shall amend the information as required. Depending on the information challenged, amendment involves the correction, deletion, or addition of information. When appropriate, the amended information shall be transmitted to third parties having access to the information in question.
- vi. The officer shall ensure that when a challenge is not resolved to the individual's satisfaction, the church shall record the unresolved challenge's substance. When appropriate, the unresolved challenge's existence shall be transmitted to third parties having access to the information in question.
