

Latitude Horizon Fund

Investment Objective

The objective of the Latitude Horizon Fund is to deliver capital appreciation over the long term by holding a concentrated portfolio of stocks, whilst lowering the equity risk and enhancing return through a selection of non-equity investments.

May Commentary

Warmer days have finally returned, just as markets take a pause for breath following their steady march higher this year. A quiet month on the “macro” front allows us the opportunity to provide an update on one of our longstanding equity holdings.

We have owned Sony in the fund since inception. It has been a strong performer, rising over three-fold since 2016. Much has fallen into place for a company that was very much in turnaround mode after a rough first decade of the century. Despite an already healthy return, we still believe there is plenty more recognition due for its collection of exceptional businesses. A lazy valuation might consider the company as a “sum of its parts”. We see it as much more than that.

The key Gaming business is centred on the dominant PlayStation platform that is starting its fifth hardware cycle with the new PS5. Selling high spec consoles at a competitive price is a costly endeavour and yet it unlocks customer relationships that can now endure in a far more fruitful manner than they have historically. This is thanks to sales of game software and subscriptions to the ‘PS Plus’ network, where 48 million members pay a $60 recurring fee to access online gaming services. Profits used to come in lumps. We expect a smoother path from here.

Music’s renaissance is in full swing. Sony Music Group makes up a triumvirate of companies dominating both recording and publishing and is sharing in the success of a streaming market. Its position as an aggregator and gatekeeper for the highly fragmented pool of artists allows for favourable economics. Streaming revenues are currently growing by 30% per year, while the divisions margins have reached all-time highs in each of the last four years.

Then come the Pictures & Electronics divisions, which contribute c.20% of group profits combined, providing visual content to a content hungry world and high-end cameras, headphones and televisions, respectively.

There are other less well-known strings to Sony’s bow. Yet, they are not any less interesting. Imaging & Sensing produces around half of the world’s lenses for our camera phones and will service applications in (increasingly) autonomous driving as well as the world’s continuous digital shift. Financial Services is a leading life insurer in Japan and generates strong cash flows to be allocated for reinvestment across faster growing areas of the business.

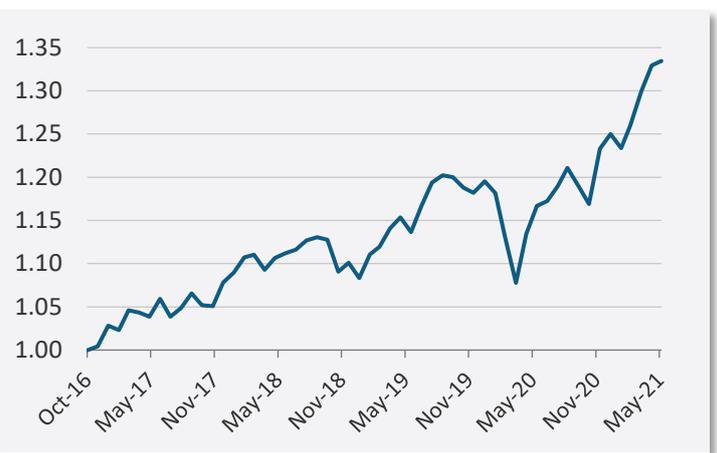

“Synergies” are oft touted by companies but have a knack of not showing up in the numbers. For Sony, what begins as a game can then find itself with a soundtrack and a television series or feature film, all facilitated under one umbrella and funded by internally generated cash from elsewhere. Mobile, gaming, music and video are trends where growth currently flourishes, and Sony sits well positioned in the crossroads. We trust management to keep it there and, post-rehabilitation, nurture further improved margins and returns from here. Considering the group’s cash and associates, one currently pays c.13x for a stream of earnings that can comfortably grow in the low to mid-teens.

Strategy's Previous Track Record¹ - This is a composite of Freddie Lait's performance in long-only global absolute return portfolios principally the Odey Atlas Fund ("Atlas") he managed from 19 October 2012 to 31 October 2016 during his time at Odey Asset Management LLP ("Odey") and Latitude Horizon Fund performance data since launch 1 November 2016. The information above and below is for information purposes, only the Latitude Horizon Fund is being offered for investment. Performance above is for the Atlas Fund I share class, net of fees and other charges. Past performance does not guarantee future results and the value of all investments and the income derived therefrom can decrease as well as increase. Investments that have an exposure to currencies other than the base currency of the strategy may be subject to exchange rate fluctuations. The data above and below reflects the reinvestment of all interest and dividends received. The Latitude Horizon Fund is a long only UCITS fund managed with similar investment guidelines, using the same investment process and subject to similar fees and charges. For full details always refer to the prospectus. While every effort will be made to manage the Latitude Horizon Fund in the same manner there is no guarantee that there will be similar performance. Note that Atlas Fund changed from a long only UCITS fund to a long-short UCITS fund on 23 April 2014. In order to show a consistent long term track record for Freddie Lait which is a more accurate representation of how the Latitude Horizon Fund will be managed, the performance of Atlas in the chart above from 23 April 2014 to 31st October 2016 is a carve-out of his actual long only portfolio over this period, which includes his long only equity and non-equity positions, rebased to cancel out any effects from leverage. Further details on the carve-out are available upon request.
