

Memory Care provided by caring professionals

At Newton Presbyterian Manor, we offer memory care for early and advanced stage of Alzheimer's and other forms of dementia in Anderson Place assisted living neighborhood and the Haury Place health care neighborhood. Because residents are unique, services are tailored to their needs and delivered by our experienced, specialized staff. Residents receive the special attention they need to address the changing stages of their illness.

In 1986, Presbyterian Manors of Mid-America introduced one of Kansas' first memory care programs at Newton Presbyterian Manor. Today, we continue to learn from our residents, their loved ones and experts in the field.

Anderson Place Memory Care

We understand that living with the early stages of Alzheimer's or other forms of dementia does not always require a structured or supervised environment. At Anderson Place, we offer assisted living residences that provide the compassionate care your loved one needs, while preserving a sense of independence and control they may desire. Here, they will enjoy a secure and welcoming environment that will continue to engage the mind through activities and social opportunities.

As the only community in Harvey County offering an assisted living memory care option, our Memory Care living suites and studio apartment homes offer privacy, security and a sense of community, all important to those experiencing the early stages of memory loss.
