

Hello neighbour,

Don't worry, I am not asking you to join a bake sale or singalong.

I've recently been considering switching from my current car to an electric vehicle, as surely many others in the UK have as well. I feel I want to do my part to support the UK's targets to cut emissions massively by 2030.

Now here's my issue: I don't have a charge point at my home, as I don't have my own driveway. So that makes it a bit tricky for me. A problem I share with many other drivers.

I am a customer of JustPark, who, in case you're not familiar with them, help homeowners with available off-street parking rent their spaces to drivers across the UK. It's so useful!

They recently sent me a note: In a bid to become the largest EV charging network in the UK, JustPark have been building their own community charging network. So instead of listing only their off-street parking, space owners - like yourself - can now add their EV charger to their listing. It takes a few minutes and allows drivers to book the space with EV charging.

That's when I thought of you and how brilliant it would be for our local community to have your space and charger on JustPark, too. As someone who lives locally, it would be such a help. But it's a win win: you could also make some proper extra cash without lifting a finger. Once listed, JustPark take care of your bookings for you and you have full control of when your space is available.

If you're interested you can simply have a look at www.justpark.com/ev for all the details. It's really easy and it would make such a difference to our community (and beyond) to have you onboard.

Thank you and here's to greener mobility for all!
