

Where to connect – and when

New Zealand's healthtech ecosystem is diverse and growing, and there is a wide range of organisations and networks that healthtech innovators can tap into for funding and support – from government agencies like Callaghan Innovation and MBIE, to member-based organisations like the Royal Society and MedTech CoRE, to not-for-profits.

It can be challenging, however, to know what support is out there, and whether you're eligible to access it.

Here is a snapshot of some of the bodies that offer funding, and the grants, funds and other funding opportunities currently available to healthtech innovators.

You can learn more about what each organisation offers via the links in the diagram.

