What is your plan for personal growth in 2022?

In order to grow, we must first know what areas we need to grow in. Understanding our weak areas takes honest, humble and honest reflection. Working with a trusted mentor can really help you hone in on the areas to focus on and prioritize the need for each area, too many areas may in reality slow and even stunt your growth. Ensure that all areas are relevant to yourself, your business, and your community.

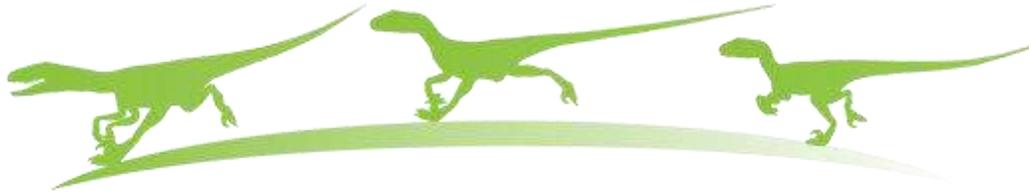

Once we determine what areas of growth to focus on, we must set a goal, create a plan, and set periodic evaluation periods to determine if we are in the right track.

Taking classes, webinars, working with a personal coach, and reading books are all great ways to grow, choose the ones that appeal to you and you are most likely to stick with.

Now that you have a goal, a plan, and a method, ask yourself, who is going to hold you accountable? Who is going to check in and ask how you are doing? A goal with no accountability is a goal easily ignored or modified to fit the moment's requirements regardless of how applicable the steps may be.

If you find yourself saying you don't have time for a growth plan, ask yourself how will your business or career grow if you do not choose to invest in yourself? No matter how busy you are, making time for growth is a necessity, not a luxury.

There are several creative ways to meet this goal. Ted Talks offers great information in 30 minutes or less. Listen to a Ted Talk while you get ready in the morning. Subscribe to an e-book service and turn your commute into growth time. No matter the constraints there is an answer for everyone.
