People Security & Insider Risk in Aviation

Threat actors will seek alternative methods to exploit potential vulnerabilities within organisations. As Airports employ new technology to mitigate threats that they face, terrorist and organised crime groups will seek alternative methods to exploit potential vulnerabilities within the airport. The threat from an Insider has been identified as a most likely preferred method of attack. The potential damage, including reputational, financial, and operational to organisations from an Insider Risk should not be over looked. It is vital to reduce vulnerability in your organisation by setting values and creating a strong security culture within it. Educating employees on the signs, motives, consequences, methods of reporting and mitigation are fundamental steps in threat reduction and protecting organisations from the insider.

Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk (Managerial Awareness) (1 day)- SQA Accredited

Our 1-day face-to-face 'Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk' course is designed to provide managers and supervisors with an understanding of Insider Risk within the aviation sector. While Airports employ new technology to mitigate threats that they face, terrorist and organised crime groups will seek alternative methods to exploit potential vulnerabilities within the airport. The Department for Transport (DfT) and Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) have identified insider activity as a potential method of attack. In addition to deliberate (malicious) insider activity, non-malicious activity by staff can also fall under the 'insider' classification and require to be addressed. The issue of insider risk within the aviation sector has not gone away during the pandemic, and indeed the threat may now be even greater as many employees have been furloughed or laid off. As the sector starts up again, there is the danger of dissatisfaction and disengagement within some parts of the workforce, and airports and the wider aviation sector must be prepared and ready to meet this challenge. Insiders continue to challenge security countermeasures, exploit potential vulnerabilities, and increase their knowledge of security procedures for their own purposes. The first line of defence to an Insider threat is the employees themselves. Setting values and creating a strong security culture within an organisation is fundamental to the success of an Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk campaign.

* CAMOR offers courses that have been credit rated at level 4 on the Scottish Credit and Qualifications Framework (SCQF) with either 1 or 2 credit points. Insider Risk Online Course for Aviation CAMOR has teamed up with one of the UK's leading online training developers to develop an online training course on Insider Risk, for all staff within the aviation sector. The course is assessable and is 'state of the art', requiring active participation by the 'learner'. It has been designed to embrace advanced and evolving learning technology. Much of the learning is provided through the examination of case studies and scenario-based learning. At the conclusion of the course, all participants should be aware of the basics in relation to insider risk mitigation and what their role is to combat this threat. Both malicious and Non-Malicious Insider activity is considered within the course content.

General Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk (Online Rise Course)

This online course has been developed to upskill staff within an organisation to recognise and understand insider activity, and what is expected of them when they detect or encounter such activity. It can be undertaken by staff at their own pace, whilst within the workplace. The risk from insider activity, or the exploitation of vulnerable employees, is possible within any sector or organisation. Understanding what constitutes employee vulnerability and Insider Risk within your organisation, is paramount in protecting it from physical, financial and reputational damage. Awareness training in what motivates an Insider, the methods of attack, and behavioural indicators enables an organisation to develop an understanding of the risk, consequences and mitigation activity.
