People Security & Insider Risk

Threat actors will seek alternative methods to exploit potential vulnerabilities within organisations. The threat from an Insider has been identified as a likely preferred method of attack. It is vital to reduce vulnerability in your organisation by setting values and creating a strong security culture within it. Educating employees on the signs, motives, consequences, methods of reporting and mitigation are fundamental steps in threat reduction and protecting organisations from the insider.

Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk (Managerial Awareness) (1 day)- SQA Accredited

Our 1-day face-to-face ‘Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk’ course is designed to provide managers and supervisors with an understanding of Insider Risk within their organisations. The Department for Transport (DfT) and Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre (JTAC) have identified insider activity as a potential method of attack. In addition to deliberate (malicious) insider activity, non-malicious activity by staff can also fall under the ‘insider’ classification and require to be addressed. The issue of insider risk within organisations has not gone away during the pandemic, and indeed the threat may now be even greater as many employees have been furloughed or laid off. As businesses start up again, there is the danger of dissatisfaction and disengagement within some parts of the workforce, and different sectors must be prepared and ready to meet this challenge. Insiders continue to challenge security countermeasures, exploit potential vulnerabilities, and increase their knowledge of security procedures for their own purposes. The first line of defence to an Insider threat is the employees themselves. Setting values and creating a strong security culture within an organisation is fundamental to the success of an Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk campaign.

General Employee Vulnerability and Insider Risk (Online Rise Course)

The screenshot displays the 'Insider Risk' module of the online course. It includes a navigation menu on the left with sections like 'Introduction', 'Module 1: Insider Risk Definition and Motives', 'Module 2: Identifying an Insider', 'Module 3: The threat from Non-Malicious Insiders', 'Module 4: The threat from Malicious Insiders', and 'Module 5: The Risk from Malicious Employees'. The main content area features a slide titled 'What is Social Engineering?' with a sub-slide asking 'What is the Social Engineer looking for on your internet profile?'. A smartphone icon on the right shows an interactive slide about potential insiders.

This online course has been developed to upskill staff within an organisation to recognise and understand insider activity, and what is expected of them when they detect or encounter such activity. It can be undertaken by staff at their own pace, whilst within the workplace. The risk from insider activity, or the exploitation of vulnerable employees, is possible within any sector or organisation. Understanding what constitutes employee vulnerability and Insider Risk within your organisation, is paramount in protecting it from physical, financial and reputational damage. Awareness training in what motivates an Insider, the methods of attack, and behavioural indicators enables an organisation to develop an understanding of the risk, consequences and mitigation activity.
