A Tasty New Year – Symbolic Rosh Hashanah Foods

Introduction

A variety of symbolic foods, called simanim, are eaten at the beginning of the Rosh Hashanah dinner. The foods are each accompanied by a short wish for the new year which includes a pun based on the name or characteristics of the food. The most well-known example is apples dipped in honey and eaten with the wish to be blessed with a sweet new year.

Simanim in Jewish Texts

Below is an explanation of simanim and the practice of eating a selection of foods with their accompanying blessings. Read the texts and answer the questions below.

Machzor Rosh Hashanah Ashkenaz Linear, Kiddush 87

On the first night of Rosh Hashanah, it is customary to perform several symbolic rituals to serve as good omens for the coming new year.

At the beginning of the evening meal it is customary to dip a portion of the challah in honey and after eating a piece, the weight of an olive, say: יי רצון – May it be Your will to renew for us a good and sweet year.

Then, take a piece of sweet apple and dip it in honey. First make the blessing, ברוך אתה והלチーム אדוני שמהלך העולם – Blessed are You, Lord, our God, King of the universe, Who creates the fruit of the tree.” After tasting it, repeat the above prayer, יי רצון – May it be Your will to renew for us a good and sweet year.

It is also a custom to eat a piece of the head of some animal (preferably a sheep) and say: יי רצון שהאנה לארע – May it be Your will that we be at the head.

We also eat certain vegetables, the names of which convey the connotations of good fortune, such as carrots which in Yiddish are called mehren (increase), and we say: יי רצון שהאנה לארע – May it be Your will that our merits increase.

Machzor Rosh Hashanah Sefard, Rosh Hashanah Customs 1-19

It is customary to eat apples dipped in honey and to say afterwards: May it be Your will, our God and God of our ancestors that we should have a good and sweet new year.
When eating the head of a sheep or fish say: May it be Your will, our God and God of our ancestors that we should be as a head and not a tail.
When eating dates say: May it be Your will, our God and God of our ancestors that our enemies be destroyed.
When eating a pomegranate say: May it be Your will, our God and God of our ancestors that our merits increase, as the seeds of the pomegranate.

Simanim in Additional Jewish Texts

The Kitzur Shulhan Arukh is a summary of Joseph Karo’s Shulhan Arukh composed in Uzhgorod (c.1844–c.1864) by Shlomo Ganzfried. The Kitzur states what is permitted and what is forbidden without ambiguity, emphasizing the customs of the Jews of Hungary at that time.

The selection below discusses the foods that were customarily eaten on Rosh Hashanah.

Kitzur Shulchan Aruch 129:9

At the evening meal it is customary to prepare symbolic dishes [as auspicious omens] for a good year. You dip the piece of challah of Hamotzi in honey, and after eating a kazayis [olive-sized piece] of challah, you should say:

יתן ה' gün לשלוח מגים
לשהות סבלｏח ופירות מהוזיא
אִמֶּרֶך שֶׁנֶּאַל תְּדִיבָה, אֶרֶך מְזָה “May It be Your will, my God, and God of my fathers’ shannah tovah umesukah” [May it be Your will to renew for us a good and sweet year]. After this you should dip a piece of apple in honey, say the berachah, Borei peri ha’eilz, and eat it. Then you say again Yehi ratzon etc. It is customary to eat the head of an animal and say Yehi ratzon shenih ‘yeh Leroesh, May it be Your will that we will be heads [leaders]. You should try to obtain the head of a sheep, which will also serve as a remembrance of the ram of Isaac. You should also eat vegetables the names of which, in the language of your country, allude to good things. Such as in our country, carrots (mehren) is Yiddish for increase] and you should say Yehi ratzon sheyirbu zechuyoseinu [May it be Your will that our merits increase.] Some people have the custom to eat an elaborate fish course, symbolizing the blessing of fertility like the fish. The fish should not be cooked in vinegar because we must not eat sour or bitter foods on Rosh Hashanah. You should eat choice meats and all kinds of sweets. It is also customary not to eat nuts and almonds, because the numerical value of egoz [nut] is seventeen, the same as cheit [which means sin]. Also, nuts increase phlegm and mucus which interferes with praying. It is proper to study Torah during the meal. Some have the custom of studying the Mishnah, Masechet Rosh Hashanah.

Highlight the names of foods in the text and answer the questions below.

1. Which foods are mentioned in this section of the Kitzur Shulchan Arukh?
2. What are some of the reasons for eating these foods?
3. According to the Kitzur, which foods should be avoided on Rosh Hashanah? Why?

Celebrating Rosh Hashanah in Historical Records

Read the following passage and answer the question below.

Rosh Hashanah in Czechoslovakia as told by Henrich Zinger and recorded by Centropa.

Before Rosh Hashanah the shofar played after the morning prayer for the whole month of Tishri and Elul at the synagogue. On the eve of the holiday Jews had to offer an apology to those they hurt even if the hurt was unintentional. On Rosh Hashanah my father put on a white shirt and went to the synagogue with my mother. It was mandatory to wear white clothes. When we grew up we also went to the synagogue with our parents. My father had a special prayer book for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. My mother cooked traditional Jewish food: chicken, chicken broth and gefilte fish. We ate apples dipping them in honey and my mother explained that we did this to express our hope for a year full of sweetness ahead.

- Which of the traditions described by Henrich Zinger does your family also follow?
