When we provide investment advice to you regarding your retirement plan account or individual retirement account, we are fiduciaries with the meaning of Title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act and/or the Internal Revenue Code, as applicable, which are laws governing retirement accounts. The way we make money creates some conflicts with your interest, so we operate under a special rule that requires us to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. Under this rule provision, we must:

- Meet a professional standard of care when making investment recommendations (give prudent advice)
- Never put our financial interests ahead of yours when making recommendations (give loyal advice)
- Avoid misleading statements about conflicts of interest, fees, and investments

- Follow policies and procedures designed to ensure that we give advice that is in your best interest
- Charge no more than is reasonable for our services
- Give you basic information about conflicts of interest

We benefit financially from the rollover of your assets from a retirement account to an account that we manage or provide investment advice, because the assets increase our assets under management and, in turn, our advisory fee. As a fiduciary, we only recommend a rollover when we believe it is in your best interest.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Our Methods of Analysis

We may use one or more of the following methods of analysis or investment strategies when providing investment advice to you:

We may use performance analyses, research reports, market data, or other information or services from third parties to assist in selecting investments for you and in developing and maintaining the Models or Account portfolios.

In particular, we may rely on third-party charting services, or third-party services that provide technical or cyclical analyses, in managing your account and identifying market sectors or asset classes.

Investments may be selected on the basis of any or all of the following criteria: performance history, the industry sector in which the security invests, the track record of any investment manager, the security's objectives, management style and philosophy, fee structure, trading restrictions, and the ability of the Adviser and the Custodian to execute orders and maintain records in an efficient manner, at reasonable costs.

The strategies to be used to achieve your objectives may include, among others, long-term purchases, short-term purchases and trading (securities sold within 30 days).

We may use model portfolios (each "Model") that our firm (or a third party) constructs and adjusts from time to time to achieve specific investment objectives. During the initial discussion with you, if we determine it is appropriate, we will recommend and assist you select a suitable Model; however, you will have sole authority to select the Model for the Account. Models we may use are described below:

- Charting Analysis – involves the gathering and processing of price and volume information for a particular security. This price and volume information is analyzed using mathematical equations. The resulting data is then applied to graphing charts, which is used to predict future price movements based on price patterns and trends.
- Technical Analysis – involves studying past price patterns and trends in the financial markets to predict the direction of both overall market and specific stocks.
- Cyclical Analysis – a type of technical analysis that involves evaluating recurring price patterns and trends.
- Long Term Purchases – securities purchased with the exception that the value of those securities will grow over a relatively long period of times, generally greater than one year.

- Short Term Purchases – securities purchased with the expectation that they will be sold within a relatively short period of time, generally less than one year, to take advantage of the securities short-term price fluctuations.

Our investment strategies and advice may vary depending upon each client's specific financial situation. As such, we determine investments and allocations based upon your predefined objectives, risk tolerance, time horizon, financial horizon, financial information, liquidity needs, and other various suitable factors. Your restrictions and guidelines may affect the composition of your portfolio.

Charting and Technical Analysis – The risk of market timing based on technical analysis is that charts may not accurately predict future price movements. Current prices of securities may reflect all information known about the security and day-to-day changes in market prices of securities may follow random patterns and may not be predictable with any reliable degree of accuracy.

Cyclical Analysis – Economic/business cycles may not be predictable and may have many fluctuations between long term expansions and contractions. The length of economic cycles may be difficult to predict with accuracy and therefore the risk of cyclical analysis is the difficulty in prediction economic trends and consequently the changing value of securities that would be affected by these changing trends.

We may use short-term trading (in general, selling securities within 30 days of purchasing the same securities) as an investment strategy when managing your account(s). Short-term trading is not a fundamental part of our overall investment strategy, but we may use this strategy occasionally when we determine that it is suitable given your stated investment objectives and tolerance for risk.

Our strategies and investments may have unique and significant tax implications. However, unless we specifically agree otherwise, and in writing, tax efficiency is not our primary consideration in the management of your assets. Regardless of your account size or any other factors, we strongly recommend that you continuously consult with a tax professional prior to and throughout the investing of your assets.

Moreover, as a result of revised IRS regulations, custodians and broker-dealers will begin reporting the cost basis of equities acquired in client accounts on or after January 1, 2011. Your custodian will default to the FIFO (First-in First-Out) accounting method for calculating the cost basis of your investments. You are responsible for contacting your tax advisor to determine if this accounting method is the right choice for you. If your tax advisor believes another accounting method is more advantageous, please provide written notice to our firm immediately and we will alert your account custodian of your individually selected accounting method. Please note that decisions about the cost basis accounting methods will need to be made before trades settle, as the cost basis method cannot be changed after settlement.

Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that you should be prepared to bear. We do not represent or guarantee that our services or methods of analysis can or will predict future results, successfully identify market tops and bottoms, or insulate clients from losses due to market corrections or declines. We cannot offer any guarantees or promises that your financial goals and objectives will be met. Past performance is in no way an indication of future performance.

Recommendation of Particular Types of Securities

As disclosed under the “Advisory Business” section in this Brochure, we primarily recommend Mutual Funds and Exchange Traded Funds however may recommend any type investments as appropriate for you since each client has different needs and different tolerance for risk. Each type of security has its own unique set of risks associated with it and it would not be possible to list here all of the specific risks of every type of investment. Even within the same type of investment, risks can vary widely. However, in very general terms, the higher the anticipated return of an investment, the higher the risk of loss associated with it.

Mutual Funds and Exchange Traded Funds: Mutual funds and Exchange Traded Funds are professionally managed collective investment systems that pool money from many investors and invest in stocks, bonds, short-term money market instruments, other mutual funds, other securities or any combination thereof. The fund will have a manager that trades the fund’s investments in accordance with the fund’s investment objective. While mutual funds and ETFs generally provide diversification, risks can be significantly increased if the fund is concentrated in a particular sector of the market, primarily invests in small cap or speculative companies, uses leverage (i.e., borrows money) to a significant degree, or concentrates in a particular type of security (i.e., equities) rather than balancing the fund with different types of securities. Exchange traded funds differ from mutual funds since they can be bought and sold throughout the day like stock and their price can fluctuate throughout the day. During times of extreme market volatility ETF pricing may lag versus the actual net underlying asset values. This lag usually resolves itself in a short period of time (usually less than one day) however there is no guarantee this relationship will always occur. The return on mutual funds and ETFs can be reduced by the cost to manage the funds. Also, while some mutual funds are “no load” and charge no fee to buy into, or sell out of the fund, other types of mutual do charge such fees which can also reduce returns. Mutual funds can also be “closed end” or “open end”. So-called “open end” mutual funds continue to allow in new investors indefinitely which can dilute other investors’ interests.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC or the integrity of Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's management. Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC has no information applicable to this Item.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC prepares the Corporation, Estate, Individual, Partnership and Trust tax returns for clients with combined assets under management exceeding $250,000.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics

Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, a prohibition of rumor mongering, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All supervised persons at Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics annually, or as amended.

Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC anticipates that, in appropriate circumstances, consistent with clients' investment objectives, it will cause accounts over which Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC has management authority to effect, and will recommend to investment advisory clients or prospective clients, the purchase or sale of securities in which Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC its affiliates and/or clients, directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's employees and persons associated with Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC are required to follow Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC and its affiliates may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's clients. The Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions, and restricts trading in close proximity to client trading activity. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is continually monitored under the Code of Ethics, and to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC and its clients.

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will share commission costs equally and receive securities at a total average price. Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions will be explained on the Order.

Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Gregory Stapp.

It is Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC's policy that the firm will not affect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. Stapp Wealth Management, PLLC will also not cross trades between client accounts. Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. A principal transaction may also be deemed to have occurred if a security is crossed between an affiliated hedge fund and another client account. An agency cross transaction is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction. Agency cross transactions may arise where an adviser is dually registered as a broker-dealer or has an affiliated broker-dealer.

The CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER, CFP® and federally registered CFP (with flame design) marks (collectively, the "CFP marks") are professional certification marks granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. ("CFP Board").

The CFP certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 63,000 individuals have obtained CFP certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

Education - Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services and attain a bachelor's degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning.

Examination - Pass the comprehensive CFP Certification Examination. The examination, administered in 10 hours over a two-day period, includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances.

Experience - Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and Ethics - Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP professionals.

Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP marks:

Continuing Education - Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and Ethics - Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients.

CFP professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP certification.
