BOOST ECONOMY, NOT FEDERAL DEBT

Falls City, Nebraska – In response to the critical staffing shortage crisis across Nebraska, Charles W. Herbster issued the following statement:

“In the face of a pandemic, Nebraskans came together to overcome unforeseen hurdles. Now we face another major hurdle: how to overcome a staffing crisis when the federal government is paying Nebraskans to stay home.

Demand requires supply. We need to be fair to our industries by allowing an even playing field against other businesses, not the federal government. Without staff, grocery stores cannot fill shelves, early education centers cannot keep students in the classroom and ranchers cannot properly tend to their livestock.

Iowa Governor Kim Reynolds today joined a group of Republican governors that are putting Americans back to work. This move will allow more people to live on the American dream not the federal government.”
