Schools prove, through the demonstrations of the study’s measures, that tutoring, increased feedback, and other resources effectively reinforced student achievement. The ideas and data collected throughout the study were reviewed lesson plans; and teachers were asked to reflect on their teaching practices. The full report is also available online: http://www.klingenstein.org/