- Gender Identity
- Sexual Orientation
- Geography
- Socioeconomic Status
- Disability Identity
- Service eligibility status
- Religion
- Citizenship Status

A note about person-first and identity-first language: The Developmental Disabilities Council acknowledges that words matter and while some people prefer identity-first language (e.g. disabled person), other people prefer person-first language (e.g. person with a disability). For the purposes of this document, we will use person-first language. However, we are committed to continuously learning and changing how we use language, and will always respect how people want others to speak about them.
