EXIT Corp. Intl News

Choice
- Joyce Paron, CEO, EXIT Realty Corp., Canadian Division

Every choice that you have made to date has created the life you now live. The seeds of thought and choice from yesterday are today's flowers and outcomes, as the seeds of thought you plant today are the flowers and outcomes for your future. How valuable our daily thought is, yet what little time and attention we give to it. Our society puts value on things you pay for, yet as the old saying goes, the best things in life are free, but only when we prioritize them.

It's as simple as a one-time thought of 'she will never change' or 'it's just too hard to get a listing' that is, over time, repeated so often that it makes true what you once never even entertained. Thoughts that don't serve us can occupy much of our day, yet this is a choice. We can decide, instead, to consider thoughts that enhance our lives.

Holding every thought captive with absolute discernment is a great place to start. Listen to your inner self-talk. Start to question every thought internally and that you say out loud. Does this thought serve me and move me toward my goals or not? If not, brush it away and don't give any further attention to it. The more often you shift your focus from what doesn't serve you and feel good to what does, the quicker you will see results that will demonstrate what a strong manifester you are. Shifting from one thought and replacing it with a better one will feel like work. It's a new habit that will take a few weeks to get under your belt.

Sometimes, challenging what is true is another way to help shift you. For example, are listings tough to get, or would it be easier to get listings if I did more effective prospecting and improved my listing presentation or my closing skills? There is so much you can control if you can focus on what you can do.

You are pure potential. No one can express your potential but you. The expression of your potential begins through your thought. Through thoughts, you plant seeds into the rich soil of your mind using your imagination. Thoughts create feelings, and feelings instigate action. If you want to be a top producer, the most productively successful broker-owner in your community, or the finest partner or best friend a person could have, make a choice. Write it down, and by reading it daily, you start to grow the future you really want. The choice is yours.

Know What You Want

- Bob McKinnon, Director of Leadership

As I begin the process of planning for the new year, I am noticing a change within me. In past years, I have written an elaborate “Life Plan” covering the major wheel of physical, financial, spiritual, etc. I pick my “one word” then start the plan. As I reflected on the last couple of years, I am aware that everything has changed within me. Most of it is a result of my wife, Shari’s, illness and blessed recovery I know, but what has changed for me is defining what I really want.

Erica Nasby recently told me that in her practice of helping people define and design their desired outcomes, they struggle at first because they “don’t know and cannot express what they really want.” As a result, plans are made on false premises and generalities, such as “I want more money, better relationships, more business,” yet we all know too well that will not cut it.

On a personal note, I have selected as my one hyphenated word next year, “RE-Center”. Why? With long hospital stays and a pandemic, I have gotten away from good old-fashioned basics like diet and exercise. I have been more reclusive than normal and struggle to get dressed up and out there like I once did. I have spent far too much time on my phone reading the news, weather, recipes on Pinterest, etc. I listen to podcasts to the point that my attention span is shrinking, and I don’t like silence like I used to. Oh my, I have become a teenager!

One of my favorite hymns is “It Is Well With My Soul.” However, it does not feel that way enough, so when I proclaim “re-center” that means to get back into positive control as I have been in the past. I thrive in a place of control, confidence, schedule and targets, tactics, and timelines. I leave a lot of room for spiritual guidance while I also know I must do my part. I want to feel fully effective again and I know what that looks and feels like.

Therefore, my plan to re-center is not as flowery and long. It is for only one quarter at a time. In the first quarter I have outlined six things to accomplish. Some are easy and some are hard, however there are only six, so I plan to keep it simple. When done I will have a few more outlined to get accomplished. Guided by what I really want and clicking off simple action items to make me more centered, I know it will happen.

Like you, I struggle. So, I want you to know that I will help you, and you will help me.

It's Separation Season

- Michael McCarron, Supervisor, Growth & Development (Canada)

Have you felt the shift yet? With all the changes in the market, it can be easy to feel nervous about all the unknowns looming around the corner. The truth is, there is more opportunity than ever before for smart, strong, well trained entrepreneurs. It’s no secret that EXIT REALTY has been focusing on training and mindset for decades and it is about to pay off in a big way. It may come as a surprise that the stable and successful salespeople put the most focus into two things: 1) Growing and nurturing a database, and 2) Self improvement.

Isn’t it true that we have access to some of the best tools and resources to help you nurture and grow your network? EXIT Promo Shop and EXIT Ad Center help you market yourself and generate leads and the digital seller and buyer presentations help you share your expertise. Remember - the biggest opportunity we have with EXIT is SPONSORING, so ask yourself this question: Who needs what you have? It is amazing what people can accomplish if they are just encouraged to do the right thing. There may be professionals from other industries who have been waiting for the opportunity to break free and start their path to financial freedom. There may be other real estate agents in your area who need the tools and support that we all have access to. No matter the scenario, EXIT Realty will reward you for making the connection to the brand. You just won’t know until you have the conversations.

EXIT Southeast’s Appalachian Trail Climb Supports St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital

Climb for Kids on the Appalachian Trail was recently completed by EXIT Southeast volunteers from five states in conjunction with The Home Loan Expert Ryan Kelley and the nonprofit, Keep Climbing Foundation, with 100% of the donations benefiting St. Jude Children’s Research Hospital and the fight against childhood cancers.

Kelley has been climbing mountains all over the world with the Keep Climbing Foundation fulfilling its mission to serve others. Beginning the climb in Cosby, Tennessee, EXIT Southeast volunteers from Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Texas, as well as volunteers from Wisconsin and Canada with EXIT Realty Corp. International, summited multiple peaks including Tennessee’s highest, Clingman’s Dome, said EXIT Southeast Regional Owner Kenny Lynn.

“We have great respect for the work of St. Jude and the impressive volunteers of Keep Climbing Foundation. With Ryan Kelley marshaling our real estate brokers, owners, agents and staff, it was a great weekend for a very worthy cause,” Lynn said.

Keep Climbing Foundation partners with companies conducting climbs all over the world said Kelley. “As a foundation, we look to partner with companies that meet our high standards. EXIT Southeast went beyond those expectations. They were engaged from the start, exceeded their $50,000 fundraising goal and showed up to the Smoky Mountains ready to put in the work. We couldn’t be happier. This will go down as one of our best fundraising campaigns of the year,” Kelley said.

EXIT Southeast Regional Owner Stacy Strobl said the fundraising effort was especially important to her after a recent cancer challenge. “After living in Memphis and volunteering at St. Jude, I saw first-hand the great work they do. Located in our EXIT Southeast region, this was a great way to support children in need from across the United States. After I recently faced a cancer challenge, supporting kids going through this difficult time hit home for me and I’m so proud of our EXIT Southeast volunteers,” said Strobl.

The EXIT Southeast climbers faced residual weather from Hurricane Ian making the hike more challenging in the wind and rain. Strobl said the team began the three-day hike, finished safely, and raised over $50,000 for a worthy cause.

A Great Smoky Mountains National Park guide company, A Walk in the Woods, provided a full-service guided trip through the Appalachian Mountains. All the participants leaned on the guide team’s expertise as they hiked in the rainy and cold conditions. A physically demanding hike, Erika Gileo, Chief Operating Officer of EXIT Realty Corp. International, said the ultimate goal was most important. “I made it up to the top and it was a little harder than I expected,” Gileo said. “I love being in nature. But, more than anything, it’s for the kids to help those struggling and sick and to support St. Jude.”

Climb for the Kids was started in 2015 by Kelley to bring attention to the lack of adequate federal funding for childhood cancer research.

St. Jude will receive 100% of donations from this event to continue their world-class pediatric cancer research. Treatments invented at St. Jude have helped push overall childhood cancer survival rate from 20% to more than 80% since it opened in 1962. Climbers were proud to face the long uphill trails, the rain, the wind, and the cold for kids battling cancer at St. Jude.
