

/ MEETING OVERVIEW

For 20 years, the international cancer immunotherapy community has connected at the CIMT Annual Meeting. As the largest meeting focused on cancer immunotherapy research and translation in Europe, CIMT is again inviting international participants for high-level scientific exchange, collaboration, and education.

In 2023, CIMT will again return to an in-person meeting in Mainz, Germany. Between 900 and 1,000 delegates are expected to attend the meeting, which will take place May 3-5, 2023.

Program

For 2023, the CIMT program committee is preparing plenary sessions from pre-clinical research to clinical development on the topics of tumor microenvironment, therapeutic vaccination, orchestrating immunity, novel immunoanalytics, and cellular therapy. The plenary sessions will be complemented by a poster exhibit and selected poster short talk sessions.

An industry exhibition will give interested companies the opportunity to showcase their latest products and services.

A limited number of corporate-supported symposia can be booked by industry partners wishing to present their research or technologies in an in-depth and comprehensive format.

As in previous years, top scientific posters by early career researchers will be selected for poster awards.

About CIMT

CIMT was founded in 2002 by physicians and researchers from different fields of clinical and theoretical medicine as an independent non-profit organization.

Now in its 20th year, CIMT is Europe's largest member-based information and education platform that facilitates the knowledge exchange between academic and industry scientists, physicians, and regulatory authorities who research and develop cancer immunotherapies. In addition to its Annual Meeting, CIMT organizes educational events for early-career researchers and collaborates on joint international meetings, such as the CICON International Cancer Immunotherapy Conference series. CIMT is financed by donations, sponsoring, and congress fees.

For more information on the Association, please go to www.cimt.eu

Meeting Dates and Deadlines

Abstract submission deadline:
February 24, 2023

.....

Conference advance registration deadline: February 24, 2023

.....

Industry exhibition registration deadline:
March 10, 2023

Industry booths and corporate-supported talks are allocated on a first-come, first-served basis and might sell out earlier.