

Josh White

Coach / Facilitator

Josh catalyzes dynamic, individual change.

With a background in psychology plus over two decades of experience, Josh leads clients to find their potential, resulting in positive culture and performance change.

Clients appreciate Josh's ability to:

- Educate and guide on emotional intelligence
- Help others understand themselves and how they lead
- Ask uncommon questions that lead to transformational thinking
- Facilitate goal-planning for CEOs and leadership teams
- Educate on strengths-based leadership

Areas of expertise:

- Executive business coaching
- Transition coaching
- Team facilitation
- Organizational culture coaching for high growth companies
- Athletics, higher education, technology, law and start-up organizations

More about Josh

Josh has his BA in Psychology from The University of Nebraska, and his JD from the Nebraska College of Law. His diverse experience includes college athletics leadership, a technology start-up, building a high-growth law firm and developing strategy and raising capital for a real estate firm. Josh is a certified Strong Interest Inventory Coach (Myers Briggs) as well as Gallup StrengthFinders Coach. Josh lives in Omaha Nebraska with his wife (Jenn) and son (Leo). He enjoys running, golfing, reading, cooking and traveling. He enjoys volunteering and has participated on a number of community boards.

client testimonials

"Josh is beyond outstanding as a leadership coach. He works to help leaders understand themselves and those around them and then proceeds to assist them both professionally and personally. Working with Josh comes with such ease. He is quick to learn, always willing to help others, and is a highly intelligent individual. His ability to connect with & teach people is undoubtedly a dominant strength. Josh has a genuine care for those around him and puts great thought into the development of those he coaches."

– Dan Douglas, President and CEO of The Iridian Group

"Josh has been a huge boon in helping me grow my leadership skills. He has provided me with a lot of advice and suggestions on things I can do to improve, techniques I can leverage, and also new ways of thinking about how I can approach various situations. I have enjoyed every interaction and leave them having learned something new."

– Arthur Flew, Director - Localization, Epic Games

"Working with Josh has been enlightening. He has helped me discover my true strengths. The process we have worked through has allowed me to understand my leadership style, validate what I do well and also helps me understand my specific areas for growth as a leader. He acts as a friend, coach and mentor and has my best interest in mind when talking through specific issues and action items."

– Julian Caldwell, Vice President at Wave Interactive

"I really enjoyed my time working with Josh. He helped me take my leadership to the next level by getting me to focus in on a few key areas that I needed to improve upon. We built a great relationship throughout the process and he became someone I could really open up to and talk through my thought process with. I really looked forward to our weekly meetings where he was a great sounding board and provided great advice and tips backed by real-world examples from his past experiences. My time with Josh really forced me to open my eyes and recognize the things I should be doing better. We worked together on an action plan which helped me prioritize my growth."

– John Stearns, VP of Engineering at Glassdoor

client list

