How Wayfinder was implemented

Norman Public Schools used a decentralized rollout to allow each high school to implement Wayfinder in a way that best supported their students' needs. At two NPS schools, teachers and prevention leads utilize real-time Waypoints and the Activity Library to inform instruction during advisory periods. While their alternative education school uses a similar approach, they have integrated Wayfinder into each class period and use activities during whole-school assemblies. Wayfinder has allowed all schools to track student progress across Core Skills, providing better visibility into school culture throughout the year.

"It fits well with our strategic plan's focus on post-secondary success and college and career readiness because it does focus on those 21st century, workforce-ready skills."
