Before buying tickets to Caesars Palace shows, check out this guide. You'll find row and seat numbers, seat views, and where to find cheaper tickets. After reading this, you'll be ready to browse tickets at the best prices guaranteed. Note: Hover over any section for a detailed breakdown or click on an event listing for virtual in-seat views. The Colosseum has a small capacity of around 4,300 people, so most seats have good views. You can even see the stage from the 400 level! If you want to avoid being blocked by standing viewers, choose row A. For a head-on view, look at sections 104, 303, 304, and 305. Rows are organized alphabetically: A-P in the 100s and 200s, A-F in the 300s, and A-K in the 400s. There are also box seats (R-T) in the 100s. For those with mobility needs or attending a show with someone who is, ADA seating is available at the rear level of each section. To filter out non-ADA seats, use our "Additional filters +" button on the event page and select "ADA (wheelchair accessible)" to view all marked accessible seats. Now you're ready to buy tickets. Consider using TickPick, which doesn't charge service fees like other sellers. Our prices are set with no additional fees at checkout! !!! Adele performed at The Colosseum at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. Additionally, other artists such as Garth Brooks, Blake Shelton, Rod Stewart, and Jerry Seinfeld have also taken the stage at this venue. Furthermore, Reba McEntire & Brooks and Dunn have collaborated on performances there. Adele's concert schedule appears to be a repetitive pattern of shows on Friday and Saturday evenings, with occasional performances on Wednesday, Thursday, and Sunday nights. The timing of these events seems to be consistent, with all shows taking place at either 7:30 PM or 8:00 PM.
