Tariq St. Patrick (played by Michael Rainey Jr.) is a freshman at Stansfield University whose life becomes complicated when he takes on his father's business to pay for Tasha's lawyers. Tasha St. Patrick (played by Nature Naughton) was once a luxurious wife but has been imprisoned for murdering her husband, who she didn't commit. Monet Stewart Tejada (played by Mary J. Blige), the matriarch of a crime family, runs the business despite her husband's imprisonment. She recently starred in The Umbrella Academy and was Oscar-nominated for Mudbound. Cooper Saxe (played by Shane Johnson) is the "last man standing in the Eastern District" who will be exposed to the St. Patrick's family dynamics again. Brayden Weston (played by Gianni Paolo), Tariq's former roommate, reunites with his friend and tries to revive their high school drug business. Tameika Washington (played by Quincy Tyler Bernstine) is a defense attorney taking on Tasha's case and trying to uncover the truth about her client's identity. Ezekiel "Zeke"Cross (played by Daniel Bellomy), Monet's nephew, relies on Tariq's tutoring to improve his grades and pursue his sports career aspirations. Lauren Baldwin (played by Lauren Baldwin) is a high-achieving Stansfield student whose life may be intertwined with the St. Patrick family dynamics. Power Book II: Ghost returns with its 4th season on Starz's back of a star-studded cast. The show revolves around Tariq St. Patrick, a young man growing up in New York City and taking over his family's drug business after his father's death. Michael Rainey Jr. plays the lead role as Tariq, whom fans first met in the original Power series. He is joined by Gianni Paolo as Brayden Weston, Tariq's close friend and partner in crime. The Tejada crime family, led by Woody McClain's Cane Tejada and Mary J. Blige's Monet Tejada, serve as primary rivals to Tariq. As the series unfolds, Tariq navigates his complicated world of street crime, drug trafficking, and relationships, with notable characters including Paige Hurd as a love interest outside of the classroom and Davis MacLean as a defence attorney hiding secrets. The show splits its return into two parts, ending the first chunk early July before returning in September to conclude the story. Known by many as the "Queen of R&B", Mary J. Blige has also acted in films like The Help, Precious, and Mudbound. In Power Book II, Lovell Adams-Gray plays Dru Tejada, the middle child of the Tejada crime family who is drawn to culture and art rather than high-stakes crime. LaToya Tonodeo, known for roles in The Fosters, The Oath, and The Perfect Match, portrays Diana Tejada, a character with complicated history with Tariq. Clifford "Method Man" Smith Jr., a member of the Wu-Tang Clan, reprises his role as Davis MacLean, a defense attorney at odds with Tariq. Alix Lapri, known for her roles in Power and Den of Thieves, returns as Effie Morales, a former love interest of Tariq's who seeks revenge against him. Paton Ashbrook, recognized from Shameless and House of Cards, plays Jenny Sullivan, an attorney who has Tariq in her sights. Larenz Tate, known for his roles in Crash, Ray, and Love Jones, portrays Rashad Tate, a professor at Stansfield with ties to Tariq's father. Monique Gabriela Curnen, seen in The Dark Knight and Contagion, plays Blanca Rodriguez, an NYPD sergeant who has been tracking the St. Patrick family for years. Michael Ealy joins Season 4 as Detective Don Carter, a new addition to the series. Michael Ealy plays Detective Doc Carter, an NYPD officer driven by a personal vendetta against New York City's drug war after his wife was killed in the crossfire. The actor is known for roles in 2 Fast 2 Furious and Barbershop. Joining him are new cast members Sydney Winbush as Anya Convington, the daughter of a menacing drug lord who doesn't know about her family's work, and LightSkinKeisha as BruShandria Carmichael, playing a larger part this season after a small role in previous seasons. Caroline Chikezie plays Noma, the mother of Tariq's new love interest Anya and a terrifying drug lord in the city. Other additions include Mattea Conforti as Elisa Marie Proctor, daughter of departed Power antagonist Joe Procter; Golden Brooks as Janet Stewart, a cousin of Mary J. Blige's character Janet; Aaron Dean Eisenberg as Detective Nico Calder, working with Carter to clean up the streets; and Alison Luff as Detective Felicia Lewis, also fighting the city's drug war. Talia Robinson plays Elle, the lead singer of a hip-hop group at Tariq's college where he has started his drug empire. Power Book II: Ghost is an American crime drama series that aired on Starz from September 6, 2020, to October 4, 2024. Created by Courtney A. Kemp, it serves as both a direct sequel and spin-off to the original Power series. The show follows Tariq St. Patrick, portrayed by Michael Rainey Jr., as he navigates his life amidst pressure from local and federal law enforcement while trying to balance his drug operations with education, love life, family affairs, and scrutiny.
