

I'm not a robot

Final fantasy xiv retainer guide

Retainers in FFXIV: Customizable Characters for Player Convenience Retainers are unique characters that offer various services to players, including storing items, gil, and selling items to other players. To unlock retainers, players must complete the Main Scenario Quest "The Scions of the Seventh Dawn" and accept the quest "An Ill-conceived Venture". Retainer Vocates can be found in major cities, allowing players to customize their appearance, speech patterns, and name. Players can hire up to 7 additional retainers by purchasing them from the Mog Station or with a FFXIV Companion App premium subscription. Retainers allow for flexible item storage, storing up to 175 item slots per retainer, as well as gil storage of up to 999,999,999 gil. Players can also use retainers to sell items on the Marketboard, with a tax based on the city-state dispatched to. Retainers participate in ventures, completing missions that bring back rare and exclusive items. As retainers complete ventures, they can equip gear, level up, and access higher-level missions. Retainers are NPCs that can be hired by players at aRetainer Vocate, allowing them to store items and Gil, sell items on the Market, and undertake expeditions (Ventures) for items and experience. Players can assign their retainers classes and give them gear before sending them out on Ventures. Retainables with a class level up by performing Ventures, but their maximum level depends on the player's level in the same class or job. Retainers are unlocked after completing the level 17 Main Story Quest The Scions of the Seventh Dawn, and players can hire retainers by talking to aRetainer Vocate near the Market Board in main cities. Initially, players can only hire two retainers, but they can add up to seven more from the Mog Station, or ten with the FFXIV Companion App upgraded to premium. To interact with retainers, players use the Summoning Bell found in Inn rooms, markets, residential areas, and endgame city hubs. They can then view their retainer's inventory, exchange Gil, sell items on the Market, access their sale history, assign classes or ventures, and view reports. Players must complete specific quests to unlock Retainers and Ventures. ARetainer Vocate is available in starting cities, while players can find additional retainers through quests or the Mog Station. Players can re-customize their retainer at any time using a Retainer Fantasia, which allows them to consult with the Vocate after use. Retainers in Final Fantasy 14: A Guide to Their Uses and Requirements Retainers are a crucial part of the game, offering various benefits and services. Here's a comprehensive overview of what you need to know. Retainers can be used to display a screen similar to the character screen for the player with attributes and equipped gear. They can also equip and unequip gear on the retainer, but not while they're on a venture. Additionally, Retainers can hold up to 175 items, including entrusts and Gil. To access your Retainer, you can view their attributes and gear at any time, even during a venture. However, their services will stop until the interaction is complete. You can also assign a new job or class to your Retainer by adding a soul stone to their equipment. Retainers have been available since Legacy times, when they were required to be deployed into a bazaar area in each city. At that time, sellers had to assign a Retainer to a vacant stall, and buyers would have to visit each Retainer in turn to check items for sale. Today, Retainers can be accessed at any time and offer various services, including selling items from your inventory on the Market Board and entrusting or withdrawing items. While hiring and managing a Retainer might seem like a chore, it's an excellent way to make easy money on the side and earn Grand Company Seals. The latest Patch 6.3 update brings several exciting features to the Retainers in Final Fantasy 14. One of these new implementations is the ability to Entrust Duplicates to them, allowing players to declutter their inventory and move stackable items to their Retainer's inventory. Additionally, Retainers now have access to Cast Glamour, Dye Items, and Try On options, making it easy for players to give their Retainers a stylish makeover without having to remove the gear from them. This new feature gives Retainers full access to menus regarding Glamour and gear management, allowing players to summon them in and make changes on the fly. To hire a Retainer, players must speak with the Retainer Vocate in one of the major cities, such as Parnell in Old Gridania or Chachabi in Ul'dah. Once hired, players can create their Retainer and assign them a personality, and up to two are available for free as part of the ongoing subscription. However, hiring additional Retainers requires an additional subscription cost, which scales depending on the number of retainers hired. The Retainer Services option allows players to hire up to seven additional Retainers for $2.00 every 30 days, with pricing scaling based on the number of retainers hired. The Retainer Service will be active for the remainder of this month and will auto-renew alongside the monthly subscription of your Service Account. If you own Final Fantasy 14 via Steam, you can use your Steam Wallet for these services. Crysta, Square Enix's account currency, is also accepted. Once payment has been processed, Retainer Services will follow the same recurring billing method as your Service Account. You can cancel this service at any time and it won't affect your Service Account subscription. You can upgrade your Final Fantasy 14 Companion App to a Premium Membership for an extra Retainer. The cost is $5 per month and depends on how many months you have left of your ongoing subscription. This means everyone's total will be different. A premium membership works in the same way as the Retainer Service, but with Crysta being accepted instead. You can cancel this service at any time and it won't affect your Service Account subscription. To assign a Retainer to a venture, you must complete a quest in one of three starting cities first. These quests can be found below: An Ill-conceived Venture (Level 17) - Limsa Lominsa Lower Decks An Ill-conceived Venture (Level 17) - New Gridania An Ill-conceived Venture (Level 17) - Ul'dah, Steps of Nald After completing this quest, you can assign a Retainer to a class via the Retainer Menu and then equip them with a weapon before sending them on a venture. A Retainer's max level cannot surpass your own level in the assigned class. You can change their class at any time, but must first reset it beforehand. Retainers will upgrade from Rogue to Ninja after reaching a certain level and require a Soul Crystal. In Final Fantasy XIV, accessing jobs like Samurai and Reaper requires meeting certain requirements first. You must ensure that you and your Retainer are at least level with the job's starting level. For example, if you want to upgrade to Reaper, which starts at Level 70, you'll need to be at least that level and have already obtained the Job before assigning it to your Retainer. Additionally, you'll have to purchase a Modern Vocation from a Retainer Vocate for 40 Ventures. This allows you to upgrade your Retainer to the job of your choice. Once assigned, your Retainer can go on Explorations at the cost of Ventures, which can be earned by trading in Grand Company Seals or completing Beast Tribe Quests and Guildleves. There are three types of Explorations: Quick Exploration, Open Exploration, and Specified Exploration, each with its own benefits for specific Classes and Jobs. Retainers in FFXIV Marketplaces and Their Uses Retainers are available in major cities' marketplaces for players to hire and customize. Players can personalize their retainers' appearance, choose personalities, and set a city state that affects tax rates on the market board. Summoning Bells allow players to call upon their retainer from marketplaces or inn rooms. Customizing Retainers Players have the option to change their retainer's appearance using Retainer Fantasias, which can be obtained through in-game items or purchased and sold on the market board. By default, two retainers are hired; additional ones can be bought with real money or added via the FFXIV Companion App premium subscription. Retainers' Purposes Retainers serve multiple purposes beyond being a banking system. They offer depth to the game's systems and provide an entire realm of side content for players. Retainers can store items, shards, crystals, clusters, and gil, making them useful for organization and inventory management. When you're not playing FFXIV, your retainers are exploring Eorzea and bringing back gifts for you! They'll return after completing Ventures, which require a currency called ventures. You can earn these by talking to Grand Company Quartermasters, Tribe vendors, Hunt vendors, or sometimes from leve rewards. Retainers can go on different types of ventures, including targeted ones that help them acquire specific items and exploration ones that give random items. Targeted ventures are more focused, lasting about 40 minutes, while exploration ones take longer - 18 hours. Quick Exploration ventures are a mix of both, returning with random items in an hour. These ventures can earn your retainer EXP based on the item's rarity. Some rare items, like minions, can only be obtained through ventures and sell for high prices. Retainers can hold any combat or gathering job, but not crafting. They should have a job that matches your highest level one or a gathering job to maximize their potential. Keep in mind they won't surpass your level on a specific job - so choose wisely! Retainer perks might not be immediately apparent, but they do offer a few extra advantages. Nonetheless, you'll still need to manually level up your gatherer role to reap these benefits. This setup is particularly beneficial for crafters, as it allows them to dispatch their retainers for necessary materials without much hassle. It also caters well to other players and gatherers who can collect additional resources with minimal effort. Crafters should opt for the gatherer providing the best-suited materials for their preferred crafting activities. Meanwhile, other players are free to choose any gatherer they wish to level up themselves. We hope you managed to retain some valuable insights from this guide! Retainers are more than just digital storage - they can also be utilized as an engaging side activity that requires minimal input. Don't let your retainers idle away; instead, utilize them for tasks like gathering resources or running errands. If you're looking for further assistance with Final Fantasy XIV, consider subscribing to our newsletter and following us on social media. Happy gaming!