Ella Purnell, Walton Goggins in 'Fallout' Season 2 (Prime Video) Based on one of the greatest video game series of all time, Fallout is the story of haves and have-nots in a world in which there's almost nothing left to have. Two hundred years after the apocalypse, the gentle denizens of luxury fallout shelters are forced to return to the irradiated hellscape their ancestors left behind — and are shocked to discover an incredibly complex, gleefully weird, and highly violent universe waiting for them. Related Purnell is Lucy, an optimistic Vault-dweller with an all-American can-do spirit. Her peaceful and idealistic nature is tested when she is forced to the surface to rescue her father. Aaron Moten is Maximus, a young soldier who rises to the rank of squire in the militaristic faction called the Brotherhood of Steel. He will do anything to further the Brotherhood's goals of bringing law and order to the wasteland. Goggins is the Ghoul, a morally ambiguous bounty hunter who holds within him a 200-year history of the post-nuclear world. These disparate parties collide when chasing an artifact from an enigmatic researcher that has the potential to radically change the power dynamic in this world. "The new season will pick up in the aftermath of Season 1's epic finale and take audiences along for a journey through the wasteland of the Mojave to the post-apocalyptic city of New Vegas," Season 2's description says. On August 14, a new Season 2 poster was posted by the official Fallout site on X (formerly Twitter), revealing Lucy, the Ghoul, Maximus, and the Ghoul's trusty hound Dogmeat in front of a decrepit New Vegas sign. The caption read: "Time for a little road trip. Season 2 is coming, but first: a quick pit stop @gamescom #OpeningNightLive on Tuesday. Bring a Stimpak." Time for a little road trip. Ella Purnell in 'Fallout' Season 2 (Prime Video) New footage in the trailer revealed a new cast member, Theroux, in the role of Robert House, an important figure from the games. "Many of our lead characters are Vegas-bound," Wagner said. "Las Vegas in the world of Fallout is Robert House's town. Robert House will be involved in Season 2," Wagner told IGN. House was previously seen in Season 1 in a small cameo. Culkin has joined the cast (cue the Home Alone hands-to-cheek scream!) for Season 2 as well. Culkin will appear in a recurring role, the details of which have not yet been revealed, other than that he is reportedly playing some kind of erratic genius. Deadline reports. Fans can expect Purnell, Goggins, Moten, and MacLachlan to return in Season 2. Season 1 also stars Moisés Arias, Sarita Choudhury, Michael Emerson, Leslie Uggams, Frances Turner, Dave Register, Zach Cherry, Annabel O'Hagan, Johnny Pemberton, Rodrigo Luzzi, and Xelia Mendes-Jones. There were some deaths in Season 1, but the show does at times take place in flashbacks, so technically, anyone could come back. "We learned an awful lot about the characters and the way they interact and talk with each other and the exciting possibilities for different encounters between characters who maybe haven't met each other yet," Nolan said of his experience on Season 1 in an interview with The Wrap. "But we also figured out how to make all the monsters, and there are more monsters, more environments, more factions that we are currently designing and building right now to begin production quite soon. So we're really excited." Fallout hails from Kilter Films and executive producers Nolan and Lisa Joy. Nolan directed the first three (out of eight total) episodes. Geneva Robertson-Dworet and Graham Wagner serve as executive producers, creators, and co-showrunners. See more photos from Fallout Season 2 below. Nov. 13 (UPI) -- Prime Video is giving a glimpse of Fallout Season 2. The streaming service shared a trailer for the season Thursday featuring Ella Purnell and Walton Goggins. Fallout is a post-apocalyptic action comedy-drama based on the video game series of the same name. The show takes place in a retrofuturistic world where Earth was ravaged by nuclear war. In Season 2, former enemies Lucy (Purnell) and the Ghoul (Goggins) form a tentative alliance as they travel together to the city of New Vegas. Lucy is searching for her father (Kyle MacLachlan) to bring him to justice, while the Ghoul explains he's survived for over 200 years in order to find his family. Meanwhile, the threat of another war looms. Moisés Arias, Aaron Moten and Frances Turner also return to star, while Justin Theroux, Kumail Nanjiani and Macaulay Culkin join the cast. Season 2 consists of eight episodes and will premiere Dec. 17 on Prime Video. On Thursday, Prime Video also released an hour-long video of a brain riding on a Roomba throughout Vault 31 in anticipation of the Season 2 premiere. "Please enjoy this exclusive time with Vault-Tec Senior Junior Vice President Bud Askins," said a message accompanying the clip, which is set to upbeat elevator music. Numerous affirmations from Askins -- voiced by Michael Esper -- can be heard throughout the video, such as: "Vault-Tec is all about preserving life for those who deserve it." "Every bump is a new experience" and "I am the fruit of civilization. I am the cream of humanity." Fallout hails from Westworld creators Jonathan Nolan and Lisa Joy, who serve as showrunners and executive producers. Walton Goggins arrives for the 77th annual Primetime Emmy Awards at Peacock Theater in Los Angeles on September 14, 2025. Adapted from the popular video game franchise, Fallout premiered on Prime Video in April 2024 and became an instant hit, amassing more than 100 million viewers worldwide and making it among the streamer's top three most-watched titles ever. Shortly after its release, Fallout was renewed for a season 2. Now, more than a year later, fans are on the edge of their seats waiting to see what's in store for Lucy (Ella Purnell), The Ghoul (Walter Goggins) and the rest of the crew in the post-apocalyptic Wasteland. After the first season of the Emmy-winning series wrapped, co-showrunner Geneva Robertson-Dworet told The Hollywood Reporter that there were a few elements from season 1 (and its fan reactions!) that the behind-the-scenes crew would bring into season 2. "What I'm really excited to continue in Season 2 is that blend of tones, that this show can have sitcom moments that are juxtaposed with people shooting each other," she said, noting that their characters have layers to them. "Knowing that people are open to Max being a morally ambiguous character is always appreciated." Meanwhile, co-showrunner Graham Wagner added that he was looking forward to "continuing to try to make our own personal and collective joy govern decisions as we go forward." From its returning cast members to its premiere date, here's everything to know about Fallout season 2. Warning: Fallout season 1 spoilers ahead! Ella Purnell and Walton Goggins in 'Fallout'. Fallout season 2 will pick up after the season 1 finale, in which Lucy discovered a string of secrets her father, Hank, had been keeping and learned more about the ongoing struggle of civilization in the Wasteland. Now, Lucy and The Ghoul will be on the hunt to find Hank — though they'll be up against Deathclaw, the treacherous monster from the video game franchise. Following the finale, Wagner confirmed to The Wrap that he was intentional about saving Deathclaw for season 2. "We wanted to get Deathclaws, but we didn't want to just throw it away. It's such a monumental piece," Wagner said. "We want to save something for season 2 to be able to do it properly, not just added on to the massive world building we had to do already in season 1. So season 2, we're very excited to finally tackle one of the most iconic elements of the games." However, Deathclaw might not be the only new component from the video game series finally making its way to the screen. During her conversation with The Hollywood Reporter, Robertson-Dworet teased the introduction of several new elements — drawing from "25 years of Fallout games" — as they continue the story line. "There were so many things that we were not able to put in the show that we really desperately wanted that are either brilliant ideas for characters, creatures, set pieces," she said. "We're always going to be bringing in new things from the Fallout mythology as we move forward with the show." Wagner also teased to The Hollywood Reporter that Lucy's character would face new challenges in season 2. "What we're already into in Season 2 is exploring how far we want to push this character, how much do we want to see her hang onto [...] herself," he told the outlet in June 2024. "It becomes the game of the show in its own way." Walton Goggins and Frances Turner in 'Fallout'. Several characters from Fallout season 1 are returning to reprise their roles, including Purnell as Lucy and Goggins as The Ghoul. They will again be joined by Aaron Moten as Maximus, Kyle MacLachlan as Overseer Hank, Moisés Arias as Norm and Frances Turner as Barb Howard. As for new faces joining the show, Macaulay Culkin is stepping into an undisclosed role, per Deadline, while Justin Theroux will portray Robert House. The trailer for season 2 of Fallout was released on Aug. 19, offering a glimpse into what's next for Lucy, Maximus and The Ghoul in the post-apocalyptic Wasteland. The clip opens with Lucy and The Ghoul looking for Lucy's father, Vault 33 Overseer Hank, after he escaped with Maximus' Power Armor in the season 1 finale. The Ghoul then asks Lucy, "You wanna know why the world ended? It started here with one man." The pair then head toward New Vegas, formerly known as Las Vegas, where they encounter Robert House, who tells Goggins' pre-Chouffied Cooper in a flashback that he knows "everything." "I know there's a war coming. The bombs will only be the beginning," House says. "My concern is that you would do just about anything to save your family. I think you are actually quite a violent man. You just don't want to kill me ... yet." Later in the trailer, Lucy and The Ghoul come face to face with one of the video game's most formidable predators: Deathclaw. In the final moments of the sneak peek, Lucy says to The Ghoul, "I defer to you about what to do in this situation," before the two run for their lives. Moisés Arias in 'Fallout'. Mark your calendars! Fallout season 2 will premiere Dec. 17, 2025, with episodes airing weekly on Wednesdays until its finale on Feb. 4, 2026. Aaron Moten in 'Fallout'.
