The Oasis Live '25 Tour is an upcoming concert tour by the English rock band Oasis currently scheduled to begin on 4 July 2025 at the Principality Stadium in Cardiff, Wales and to end on 23 November at the Estádio do Morumbi in São Paulo, Brazil. It was announced on 27 August 2024, two days before the 30th anniversary of their debut album, Definitely Maybe. It is set to be Oasis's first live appearances since they split in 2009. Initially, seventeen dates across five cities in the United Kingdom and Ireland were announced, including five dates each at Wembley Stadium in London and Heaton Park in Manchester. Three extra dates were announced on 29 August 2024 due to high demand. The announcement of the tour prompted six of Oasis's works to re-enter the UK charts, including "Live Forever", which out-peaked its original release. General sale tickets were released on 31 August 2024, with users reporting long queue times, 503 error messages, being mistaken for bots, frustrations with dynamic pricing, limited purchasing time windows, and high reseller fees. Around 14 million people are said to have joined the scramble for 1.4 million tickets for only 17 shows announced at the time across the UK and Ireland.[1] To satisfy demand, Oasis announced multiple additional concert dates in the United Kingdom and Ireland, followed by dates in North America, Australia, South America and Asia, for which dynamic pricing was not used. The support acts for the tour include Cast, Richard Ashcroft, Cage the Elephant and Ball Park Music. Oasis formed in Manchester in 1991[2] and became one of the defining bands of the Britpop era and one of the biggest bands in the world, releasing seven albums in the 1990s and 2000s. Its constant members, the brothers Liam Gallagher and Noel Gallagher, had a tempestuous relationship.[3] The brothers split acrimoniously in 2009 during their Dig Out Your Soul Tour, between an appearance at V Festival[4] and a scheduled performance at Rock en Seine in Paris[5] on 28 August 2009.[6] After the group disbanded, the Gallagher brothers each formed their own bands, Beady Eye and Noel Gallagher's High Flying Birds, while regularly insulting each other in the press.[3] In 2024, around the time of the 30th anniversary of Oasis's debut album, Definitely Maybe, speculation grew that the brothers would reunite. At first Liam denied the stories, though his tweets became more open-ended over time. On 27 August,[3] two days before Definitely Maybe's anniversary,[7] the band announced a series of dates in the United Kingdom and Ireland between 4 July and 17 August 2025, including five dates each at Wembley Stadium in London and Heaton Park in Manchester. A press release stated that the band planned to visit other continents outside of Europe later that year.[3] Three subsequent dates were announced for 16 July, 30 July, and 12 August due to high demand.[8] Much of the media reaction focused on the Gallaghers' relationship, increasing the odds of getting tickets, and whether younger female fans deserved to be there.[9] The last of these prompted Noel's daughter Anaïs Gallagher to accuse some fans of ageism and sexism.[10] Alexis Petridis suggested that the brothers' reunion could have been precipitated by Noel's divorce from his wife, which had cost him £20 million.[11] Manchester's nightlife economy adviser Sacha Lord expressed appreciation that the reunion could bring £15 million to the region.[12] The Maldron Hotel chain in Manchester was accused of cancelling bookings in order to resell rooms at inflated prices, prompting them to state that the rooms were overbooked.[13] Live Nation UK came in for criticism from housing activists and politicians in Edinburgh for scheduling that nation's dates during the Edinburgh Festival Fringe, as the city's hotels and Airbnbs were already stretched during its duration.[14] Some felt that the band's return was an unwelcome 1990s throwback. The Independent's Ashley Davies suggested that fans worried about the Gallaghers assaulting each other should turn their attention to men assaulting women, as the era was notorious for laddishness.[9] The Guardian's Simon Price called Oasis "the most damaging pop-cultural force in recent British history".[15] The same paper's Barbara Ellen wrote on 31 August that, in four days, the band had been "castigated for everything from bad haircuts and 'football crowds' of middle aged fans in parkas and bucket hats who walk funny, to boorishness, sexism, the demise of 90s music culture, and spreading laddism like a virus". She described the tour as "the most controversial band reunion since the Sex Pistols' 1996 Filthy Lucre Tour".[16] Brendan O'Neill wrote on Spiked that he welcomed the reunion due to what he perceived to be the dominance of middle-class artists with conformist views, such as The 1975.[17] On 30 August, Time Flies... 1994–2009, (What's the Story) Morning Glory?, and Definitely Maybe re-entered the UK Albums Chart at numbers 3, 4 and 5, respectively, and "Don't Look Back in Anger", "Wonderwall", and "Live Forever" re-entered the UK singles chart at numbers 16, 17 and 19, respectively.[18] Time Flies and Morning Glory spent a further week at those positions, while Definitely Maybe peaked at number one the following week due to a 30th anniversary re-release;[19] additionally, "Live Forever", "Don't Look Back In Anger", and "Wonderwall" peaked at numbers 8, 9, and 11, respectively. The new "Live Forever" chart position constituted a new peak for the track, as it had only managed number 10 on its original release.[20] Around 14 million people are said to have joined the scramble for 1.4 million tickets for only 17 shows announced at the time across the UK and Ireland.[1] Between 19:00 and 22:00 on 30 August 2024,[21] select tickets were released during a pre-sale, with seats selling for between £73 and £205, standing tickets for around £150, and premium packages costing up to £506.[22] These tickets went on sale via a ballot,[16] with fans asked how many times they had seen the band and required to identify the name of the band's original drummer, Tony McCarroll. All of the presale codes had been allocated by 14:30 that day.[21] Within minutes of these tickets being released, presale websites were selling them for several thousand pounds; tickets for their 26 July show were being sold for £6,000, prompting responses from the band and the resale company Viagogo.[22] General sale tickets for the Ireland gigs were released at 08:00 BST on 31 August 2024, while sales for the gigs in Great Britain opened an hour later. Sales were handled by Ticketmaster, Gigs and Tours, and See Tickets, while resales were handled by Ticketmaster and Twickets.[23] The tour was promoted by SJM Concerts, MCD Promotions and DF Concerts, all of which had links to Ticketmaster's parent company Live Nation Entertainment.[24] At 13:23 on the day of the public sale, Ticketmaster Ireland announced that their Dublin gigs had sold out,[25] and at 19:00, Oasis tweeted that all tickets had sold out.[26] Some users reported having over one million people ahead of them in the queue, and others reported waiting in a "queue for the queue".[23] Some users additionally reported 503 error messages[25] and being mistaken for bots.[27] Ticketmaster attracted criticism for selling "In Demand" and "Official Platinum" tickets for inflated dynamic pricing,[28] a practice they defended;[27] The Guardian's Josh Halliday reported having only ninety seconds to make his purchasing decision.[29] As a result of users complaining about their experiences, "#shambles" started trending on X[30] and several hundred fans complained to the Advertising Standards Authority.[31] Twickets also received criticism for their high reselling fees, prompting its founder to announce that they would cap their fees at the lower of "10% + a 1% transactional fee" or £25.[32] On 1 September, Loudersound reported that two nosebleed seats for their 26 July gig were available on Viagogo for £23,603 each,[33] and the government of the United Kingdom announced that they would probe the practice of dynamic pricing.[34] Three days later, the band announced two additional dates at Wembley Stadium that would have an invitation-only ticket sale,[35] and the day after that, the Competition and Markets Authority launched its own investigation as to whether Ticketmaster broke the law.[36] In late October, the band's promoters announced that they would cancel over 50,000 tickets and put them back on sale at face value via Ticketmaster.[37] In March 2025 the Competition and Markets Authority completed its investigation and said that Ticketmaster "may have misled Oasis fans" with unclear pricing when it put tickets on sale.[38] On 26 September, NME revealed plans to extend the tour to cities in the Americas, Asia and Oceania;[39] the North American dates were confirmed four days later,[40] while the Australian dates were confirmed on 8 October.[41] Alongside the announcement of the North American dates, the band's management also confirmed in a statement that they would not be implementing Ticketmaster's dynamic pricing system for those shows in an attempt to avoid a repeat of what happened with the UK and Ireland shows.[42] Cage the Elephant were announced as their support act two days later.[43] Upon their release on 4 October, all of the North American dates sold out within an hour.[44] The Independent claimed on 13 October that Richard Ashcroft and Cast would support the band on their UK and Ireland tour, Cast first,[45] though these were not confirmed until 21[46] and 28 October respectively.[47] On 4 November, ads started appearing in South American cities along with a post on the band's official social media, teasing an official announcement for the next day.[48][49] Dates in Buenos Aires, Santiago and São Paulo were officially announced on 5 November.[50] With 132,000 tickets available in total, both Brazilian dates were sold out in under 60 minutes, which prompted rumours of a third and final date in the MorumBIS stadium.[51] On 22 November, Asian shows were announced on the band's official media. Dates for South Korea and Japan were officially confirmed.[52] List of 2025 concerts[5][8][35][43][50][53][54][55] Date (2025) City Country Venue Opening act 4 July Cardiff Wales Principality Stadium Cast[47]Richard Ashcroft[46] 5 July 11 July Manchester England Heaton Park 12 July 16 July 19 July 20 July 25 July London Wembley Stadium 26 July 30 July 2 August 3 August 8 August Edinburgh Scotland Murrayfield Stadium 9 August 12 August 16 August Dublin Ireland Croke Park 17 August 24 August Toronto Canada Rogers Stadium Cage the Elephant[43] 25 August 28 August Chicago United States Soldier Field 31 August East Rutherford MetLife Stadium 1 September 6 September Pasadena[a] Rose Bowl 7 September 12 September Mexico City Mexico Estadio GNP Seguros 13 September 27 September London England Wembley Stadium Cast[47]Richard Ashcroft[46] 28 September 21 October Goyang[b] South Korea Goyang Stadium — 25 October Tokyo Japan Tokyo Dome 26 October 31 October Melbourne Australia Marvel Stadium Ball Park Music[56] 1 November 4 November 7 November Sydney Accor Stadium 8 November 15 November Buenos Aires Argentina Estadio Más Monumental — 16 November 19 November Santiago Chile Estadio Nacional Julio Martínez Prádanos 22 November São Paulo Brazil MorumBIS 23 November As per NME.[57] Oasis Liam Gallagher - vocals, percussion Noel Gallagher - vocals, guitar Touring members Andy Bell - bass Gem Archer - guitar Paul "Bonehead" Arthurs - guitar Joey Waronker - drums ^ Billed as Los Angeles in promotional material. ^ Billed as Seoul in promotional material. ^ a b George, Thomas (31 August 2024). Tuttavia, i fan hanno notato l’assenza di Wonderwall, uno dei pezzi più iconici della band.A tal proposito, Liam Gallagher ha commentato su Twitter: “Non è lontana (dalla realtà, ndr)”, lasciando intendere che la scaletta potrebbe essere simile, ma non definitiva. Inoltre, ha rassicurato i fan, dichiarando che durante i live verranno suonati solo brani degli Oasis, escludendo qualsiasi pezzo dalle carriere soliste dei due fratelli.Ecco la scaletta trapelata online:AcquiesceSome Might SayLylaShakermakerThe Hindu TimesColumbiaCast No ShadowShe’s ElectricStand by MeStop Crying Your Heart OutThe Importance of Being IdleHalf the World AwayWhateverSlide AwaySupersonicMorning GloryRock ‘n’ Roll StarCigarettes & AlcoholDon’t Look Back in AngerLive ForeverChampagne Supernova Un evento imperdibile per i fan del britpop Il ritorno degli Oasis è già stato definito come uno degli eventi musicali più attesi del decennio. Per i nostalgici del britpop anni ’90 e per le nuove generazioni, questo tour rappresenta un’occasione unica per vedere di nuovo sul palco una delle band più influenti di sempre. I biglietti per le date già annunciate stanno andando a ruba e ormai non resta che attendere la conferma delle tappe europee per completare un calendario che si preannuncia leggendario. In attesa di rivedere di nuovo sul palco insieme i fratelli Gallagher in occasione dei concerti del tour di reunion degli Oasis, si susseguono da tempo voci sulla possibile scaletta di brani che i fan ascolteranno dal vivo. Tra le indiscrezioni emerse nei giorni scorsi che avevano allarmato il pubblico, una ripresa dall'edizione domenicale del quotidiano "The Sun" sosteneva la cancellazione dalla setlist della tournée del brano "Hello". La canzone è il brano di apertura del classico album della band del 1995, "(What’s The Story) Morning Glory?", e contiene alcuni versi che fanno riferimento al brano "Hello, Hello, I’m Back Again" di Gary Glitter, musicista condannato per pedofilia. Secondo quanto aveva dichiarato una fonte al "The Sun on Sunday (ripresa dall'"Evening Standard"), “Il testo del brano si adatterebbe perfettamente all’atmosfera di un tour di reunion, ma la band ha deciso di lasciarlo nel passato. Sarebbe inappropriato suonarlo, dato il collegamento con Glitter e le sue condanne”. A seguito dell'indiscrezioni, è intervenuto direttamente Liam Gallagher sui social per chiarire la questione. Quando una fan le ha chiesto su X/Twitter se fosse vero che "Hello" era stata rimossa dalla scaletta del tour, il cantante degli Oasis ha risposto: "Suoneremo 'Hello'! Fidatevi di me" We’ll be playing HELLO trust me— Liam Gallagher (@liamgallagher) May 5, 2025 Negli ultimi giorni, Gallagher si è anche impegnato a smentire alcune false notizie riguardanti il tour di reunion, comprese presunte scalette “trapelate”. Quando un fan gli ha inviato una lista di brani, il cantante ha risposto sempre su X confermando che, pur non trattandosi della scaletta ufficiale preparata dalla band, “non è lontana dalla realtà”. Liam ha inoltre rivelato che nessuno dei suoi brani da solista sarà suonato durante il tour. It’s not far off— Liam Gallagher (@liamgallagher) January 7, 2025 Insieme al fratello Noel, gli Oasis si esibiranno in diversi grandi stadi nel Regno Unito e in Irlanda entro la fine dell’anno, con tappe previste anche in Nord America, Sud America, Australia, Corea del Sud e Giappone. Secondo alcune fonti riportate dall'NME, sul palco con i fratelli Gallagher ci saranno anche Andy Bell, Gem Archer, Paul “Bonehead” Arthurs e Joey Waronker.
